Commission balks at timeline for sale of Flanders Mansion

■ Will it be put to a public vote?

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SAYING THEY need more time to read the 348-page environmental impact report on Flanders Mansion, planning commissioners voted Wednesday to put off a vote on the sale of the historic home until Sept. 7.

Commissioners also asked for more information about whether selling the mansion would require a public vote.

The city council had hoped to have the commission's recommendations on the EIR's adequacy and the fate of Flanders in time for its Sept. 6 meeting.

Principal planner Brian Roseth recommended the commission find the EIR adequate in its review of the potential environmental impacts of selling the deteriorating mansion, which is surrounded by the city's Mission Trail Nature Preserve. He said selling or leasing Flanders complies with the general plan and Local Coastal Program and suggested the commission advise the city council to sell it, impose a number of measures to reduce the effects on public access to the house and surrounding property, and adopt conditions of sale that would limit what a private owner or lessee could do with the house and land.

The historic resources board met the previous night and concluded the EIR is adequate but decided to make no recommendation on whether the city should sell Flanders, he added.

Time to digest

Attorney Skip Lloyd asked commissioners to delay action on the EIR for a month, so that people could read and respond to the lengthy document released last week. He argued that allowing less than a week could be considered a violation of California environmental law.

"This has been debated for so long, and now it's at a crisis point where we have information in front of us," said Flanders Foundation President Melanie Billig. "We need

Something's missing from book on Yosemite tragedy

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR A group of 12 Carmel High School students and their five leaders, July 27 marked the 20th anniversary of a tragic event none of them could ever forget.

Yet a new book about a lightning strike that killed two young hikers on top of Yosemite's famous Half Dome fails to mention the role the group played in saving the lives of two other critically injured hikers.

"Shattered Air — A True Account of Catastrophe and Courage on Yosemite's Half Dome," by Shasta County author Bob Madgic, tells a remarkable — but incomplete — story of that day's shocking events.

Failing to heed warnings, a group of five hikers climbed to the top of Half Dome just moments before a severe afternoon lightning storm struck. The group from Carmel was sheltered safely on the side of the mountain as it waited for the weather to improve.

After the lightning subsided and the sky began to clear, a few hikers ascended Half Dome to watch the sunset. What they discovered at the top was horrific — one of the first group of hikers lay dead, two others were critically injured, and a fourth had fallen from Half Dome, which towers 4,737 feet above the floor of Yosemite Valley.

The first hiker to arrive on the scene was a paramedic and realized immediately that a rescue was needed. Another hiker, who had even more experience with medical care, took control of the emergency. Not long after they began to work on the victims, the first members of the Carmel group arrived on the scene.

"Two new hikers appeared on the summit," writes Madgic in the book. "They said they, too, were EMTs [emergency medical technicians] and offered to assist. Renee Miller was in her early 20s, and the other was a man who only gave his first name, Brutus." The author left out the fact that both were with the Carmel High group.

According to Laurie Solon-Husby, a CHS graduate who was on the Yosemite trip, "Brutus" was one of their leaders. His real name was Bill Lester, a longtime resident of the Yosemite area and a man noted for his expertise in outdoor survival skills. Renee Miller was a resident of Carmel Valley

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A SMALL section of Scenic Road near Carmel Point that collapsed Aug. 6 will remain closed until at least the third week of September.

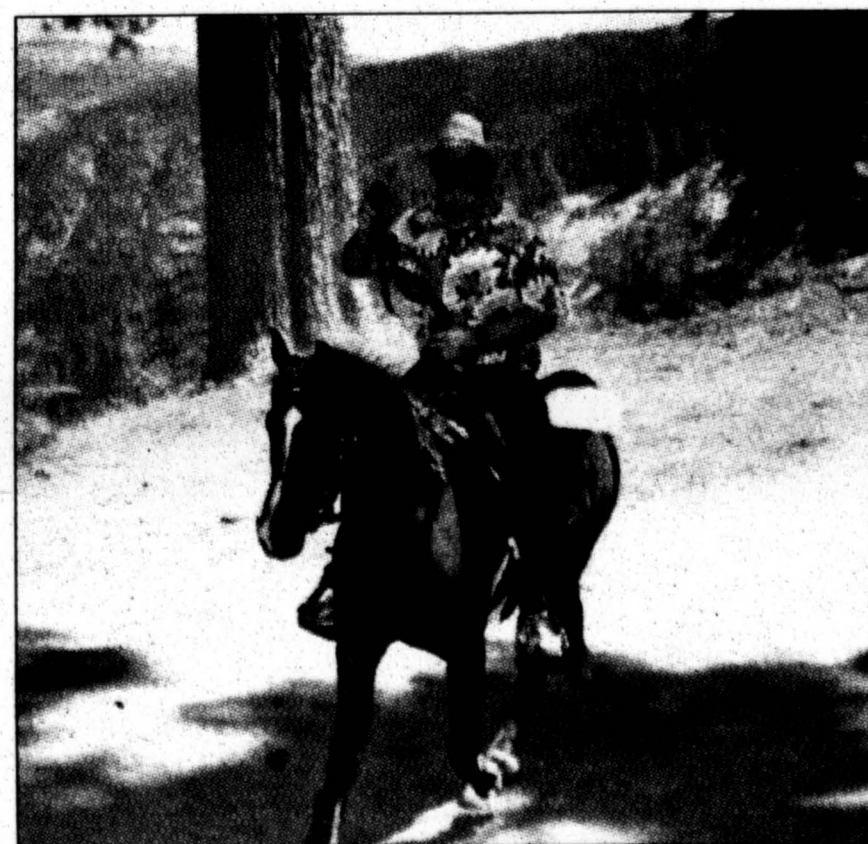

According to Vic Lewis, interim Monterey County Public Works maintenance manager, his staff is currently busy with a Carmel Valley Road maintenance project and won't be able to begin repair work until Sept. 6. And that date could slip further if any obstacles are encountered obtaining an emergency work permit from the California Coastal Commission.

For now, motorists have to take a detour around "Dead Man's Curve," perhaps the most dramatic section of the 2-mile-long Scenic Road. The traffic is being rerouted through a residential neighborhood.

The road failed after a 20-year-old repair project utilizing

Pain-free walking is within reach for hip replacement patients

By CHRIS COUNTS

FOR MANY seniors, joint pain can be a major threat to their quality of life, because if it gets bad enough, it forces them to curtail activities they enjoy most.

But relief of even the worst pain in the most vital joint — the hip — has become a lot easier, thanks to technological advances in hip replacement surgery.

Dr. Ronald Chaplan, an orthopedic surgeon, will present a talk on new surgical options for hip replacement surgery at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula Aug. 20 at 10 a.m. The program will cover a wide range of subjects related to hip surgery, including groundbreaking modern surgical techniques, prosthetic devices, pain relievers, and the role of physical therapy and exercise in recovery.

"When my father-in-law had hip replacement surgery 10 years ago, he spent 14 days in the hospital," said Chaplan, a Carmel Valley resident. "Now we have people out of the hospital in three days. Our goal is to get people home as soon as we can."

'Wear and tear'

Chaplan said most of his patients are more than 65 years old. The primary cause of hip-related problems is simply "wear and tear," resulting in damaged cartilage or the onset of arthritis.

People suffering from hip pain often put off surgery for years, fearing the impact it will have on their bodies — fears Chaplan said are usually unfounded.

"Most people notice a reduction in pain almost immediately after surgery," said Chaplan, who has a private practice in Monterey. "A common statement I hear from people is, 'I wish I had done this long ago.'"

But Chaplan urges potential patients to proceed cautiously.

"Do it when you are ready," he said. "There is never a need to rush with this kind of surgery."

If a patient decides to undergo surgery, an artificial ball-and-joint device will be implanted to restore alignment and function in the hip. Once surgery is complete, a patient also can look forward to a quick recovery. Perhaps the biggest factor in reducing the recovery time is simply the size of the incision, which leads to a less invasive procedure.

"We used to make a 12-inch incision," Chaplan explained. "Now we make a 4-inch incision."

New technology allows medical personnel to "see through" a much smaller hole," said Chaplan. "It's like building a ship in a bottle versus building a ship in your backyard."

As good as any hospital

While recovery times vary depending on age, health, techniques and severity of injury, patients typically are able to return to their previous activity level within four to six weeks.

Chaplan said Monterey Peninsula residents are lucky to have access to some of the most advanced surgical facilities anywhere.

"Our technology is right up to the minute," he said. "We're doing as good a job as any of the teaching hospitals in the country, such as Stanford or the Mayo Clinic."

The hospital is located at 23625 Holman Highway. Its main conference room will host the talk. Seating is limited to the first 150 guests and there is no charge.

Fugitive jumps bail, nabbed in Big Sur by park rangers

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

CALIFORNIA STATE Park rangers apprehended a sex-crime fugitive in Big Sur Aug. 9 who failed to show up in court for sentencing in July, said Dave Schaechtele, state parks spokesperson.

Ronald Wayne Hobbs, 52, was wanted on a $1 million arrest warrant after he did not appear for sentencing in connection with an illegal locker-room videotaping scheme at a Moreno Valley high school in Riverside County in 2002.

According to Schaechtele, rangers were alerted to Hobbs after he was discovered illegally camping near the Big Sur Multi-Agency Facility, which is located adjacent to Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. After the arrest, Hobbs was transported back to Riverside County.

Waiving his right to a jury trial, Hobbs was convicted in May of numerous counts of invasion of privacy, a state penal-code violation related to filming, and burglary.

Sheriff: C.V. man posed as own caregiver to take $$

By MARY BROWNFIELD

A 69-YEAR-OLD Rippling River resident bilked the Monterey County Department of Social and Employment Services out of $18,413 by fraudulently cashing checks written to a caregiver who stopped helping him two years ago, according to the sheriff's department.

"The old man kept getting these checks to pay for the caregiver," Monterey County Sheriff's Sgt. Scott Ragan said Monday, though he would not release the suspect's name. "He wrote a letter to the department of social services changing the old caregiver's address to his own address, and he forged his name on some of these checks."

The alleged fraud was discovered after the Internal Revenue Service tracked down the man's former caregiver, 34-year-old Raymond Thompson, at home in Beaverton, Ore. "The IRS contacted him because Monterey County Social Services was reporting income for this guy that he wasn't getting," Ragan said. Thompson told the federal tax collectors he hadn't worked in Monterey County since 2003. "That's what kicked off the investigation."

The Rippling River resident reportedly told deputies he was using the money to hire day laborers to handle tasks for him, such as laundry and cleaning, that Thompson had done. "He could be a total fraud," Ragan said. "Or it could be that the guy, rather than go through the red tape to get another caregiver, is hiring these illegals who hang out in front of Casey's."

Ragan said the man has not been arrested but could face charges of fraud, forgery and embezzlement. The sheriff's office is investigating further before sending the case to the district attorney's office for possible prosecution, and the department of social services is also looking into the case.

Test scores show Carmel's strengths, superintendent says

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL PUBLIC school students in all grades tested better in most areas of study, according to the Standardized Testing and Reporting System results released this week. Kids scored higher on 30 of the 33 exams administered last spring, Carmel Unified School District Superintendent Marvin Biasotti said.

"Ten percent are more proficient than they were a year ago — more than double the state gain, which was around 4.5 percent," he said. "And in math, where we focused a lot of attention, we nearly tripled the state gain."

That success indicates the district's curriculum better matches what the state expects and that teachers have become more effective in helping their students learn it.

"We put a lot of effort into our entire program," Biasotti said.

Much of the work has been championed by Mary Bull, hired a year ago to oversee curriculum and instruction.

Teachers in similar grades make sure they are covering similar material and have similar expectations of their students — that they

Helicopter flyovers net $5M in pot plants

By MARY BROWNFIELD

SURVEILLANCE FLIGHTS over Los Padres National Forest this summer led a team of law enforcement officers to three gardens containing 996 pot plants, Monterey County Sheriff's Investigative Sgt. Doug Dahmen announced Monday. They hacked down and hauled out plants that would have produced almost $5 million had they made it to maturity and onto the street.

Working with federal and state agents and county narcotics detectives, members of the federally funded County of Monterey Marijuana Eradication Team used helicopters not only to find the gardens deep in the brushy Ventana Wilderness several thousand feet above sea level.

"Our deputies were actually hoisted into the gardens, dropped in, and then the marijuana was hoisted out," Dahmen said.

They used machetes to chop down plants ranging in height from 4 feet to 10 feet, threw them into nets and flew them out, according to Dahmen. The pot will be stored at the sheriff's office while the growers are sought.

Several irrigation timers and other devices found at the scene could contain fingerprints, which investigators hope will be on file, either from prior run-ins with the cops or via a more mundane route — such as an application for a teacher's job.

"And if we locate someone, then we'll go back and confront them to find out why their prints were on a timer used in the middle of a national forest," Dahmen said. "And they'll say they touched it while it was on the supply shelf at Orchard."

But with harvest season in full swing, Dahmen and his team are "running from garden to garden" and are more focused on finding the plants than investigating the cases. That will happen when the pace slows after the first winter storm.

"Right now we're more interested in getting the dope," he said.

About 85 percent of the marijuana plantings they find are on national forest or U.S. Bureau of Land Management lands, with the remainder in back yards — though some of those are permitted for medical use under Proposition 215, he said.

Using public property means less risk for the perpetrators, who could lose their own land and homes through asset forfeiture if pot was found growing there.

"They go to great lengths to hide it — they might crawl a mile on their hands and knees through manzanita to find an area that's highly secluded, and then cut out the growth site and locate a water source," Dahmen said. "It becomes a very comprehensive operation."

In some cases, the cultivators will live in tents at their site.

A sheriff's investigator says cloning has produced marijuana with far more THC

Backcountry first aid call leaves Tevis Cup rider happily in 74th place

By MARY BROWNFIELD

HE HAD to stop in the middle of the race to administer first aid to another rider who fell from her horse, breaking her wrist.

Otherwise, Cachagua volunteer firefighter Bob Eaton might have finished higher in the 100-mile Western States Trail Ride last month.

Since 1955, the 24-hour race, also known as the Tevis Cup, has made its way through the Sierra Nevada backcountry from Robie Park to Auburn each summer. Finishing at all is a big accomplishment — especially for first-timers such as Eaton.

"The Tevis is like the Kentucky Derby of endurance riding, and it's about as high of a goal as you can set, just to be able to finish it," Eaton said. "The fact that I could was just amazing to me. And it wasn't me — it was my horse."

Astride Yahoo — whose name was inspired by his high-spiritedness — Eaton finished just 30 minutes shy of the cut-off, coming into Auburn at 4:48 a.m. July 24. First-place rider Cathy Richardson finished almost six hours earlier. But Eaton's 74th place is nothing to sniff at, as 199 riders started the race, while only 89 finished it.

Strict vet checks along the route are meant to ensure horses are not suffering any ill effects of such a grueling race, and those who don't pass muster are disqualified.

Injuries also take people out of the running, and Jan Jeffers, a six-time Tevis finisher and Eaton's mentor, didn't make it to the finish line.

As the duo rode through the Granite Chief Wilderness near Lake Tahoe, her horse slipped on a large flat rock and fell on her.

"She stuck her hand out to brace herself, and it broke her wrist," Eaton said.

With no way to summon immediate medical help, Eaton had no choice but to stop.

His trail-side ER work threw him off pace for the rest of the race. But Eaton was unfazed.

"Humans are more important than anything else in the whole wide world," he said.

Failing to finish in time because he offered help to a fallen rider also gave him no cause for pause during a 50-mile competitive ride at Lake Sonoma one year.

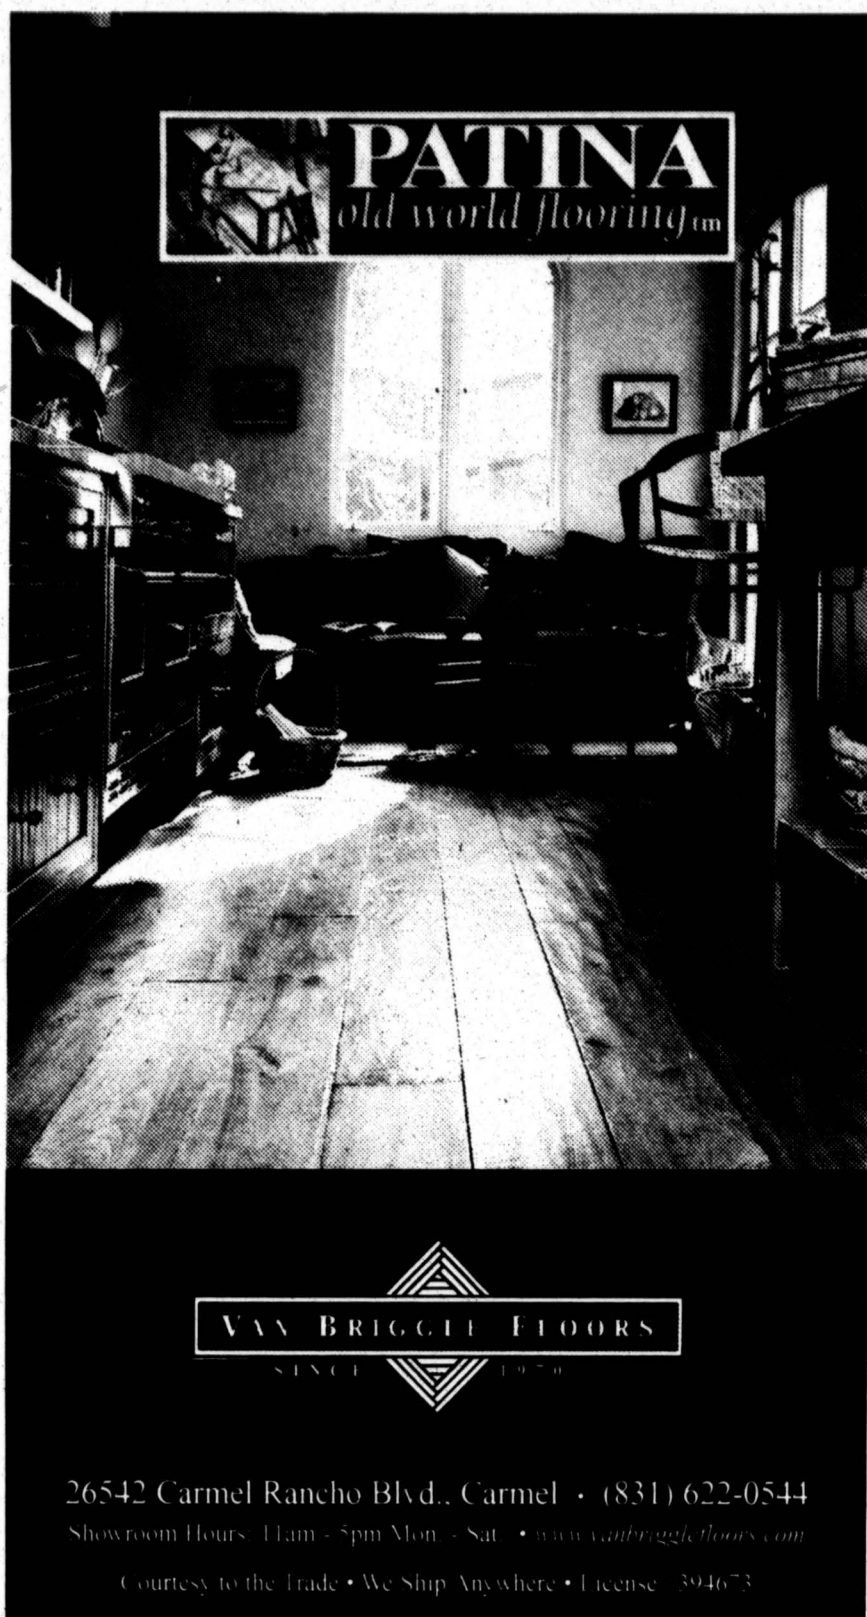

"A guy came off his horse and hit a tree, so I treated him for broken ribs. Then I was riding along and hoping I could finish, and I came across a woman with a broken collarbone," he said. "And then farther on, there was a lady who had been stung by bees and was allergic."

But his sturdy and fit horse carried Eaton along the mountainous Tevis Cup route, which fluctuates between 700 and 8,700 feet in elevation, in time to get his coveted finisher's belt buckle.

"He never took a wrong step the whole 100 miles," he said. "He was phenomenally strong."

By Margot Petit Nichols

MR. DIVO ABLE, one-and-a-half, is one of a new breed of dog in Texas, a Shih Tzu and Lhasa Apso mix, according to Mom Linda Able.

Cuddly, apricot-coated Mr. Divo lives with Mom Linda part time in Houston, Texas, and part time in Carmel-by-the-Sea in the cozy Ryland-designed stone cottage on the dunes formerly owned by the late Peggy Arnold, and then by Mrs. Gallo.

The great benefit of cottage living, Mr. Divo believes, is that he can just slide down the dunes to the ocean and play to his heart's content with beach buddy, wire-haired terrier Gus Linder.

Mr. Divo is a dog for all seasons, being equally at home on the beach, in the air (Mom is a pilot) or at sea: He goes sailing with Mom and her Texas regatta pal, world-class yachtsman Bill Choice, and even has his own little life jacket. But mostly he hangs out in the galley, hoping for his favorite venison-and-potato dinner.

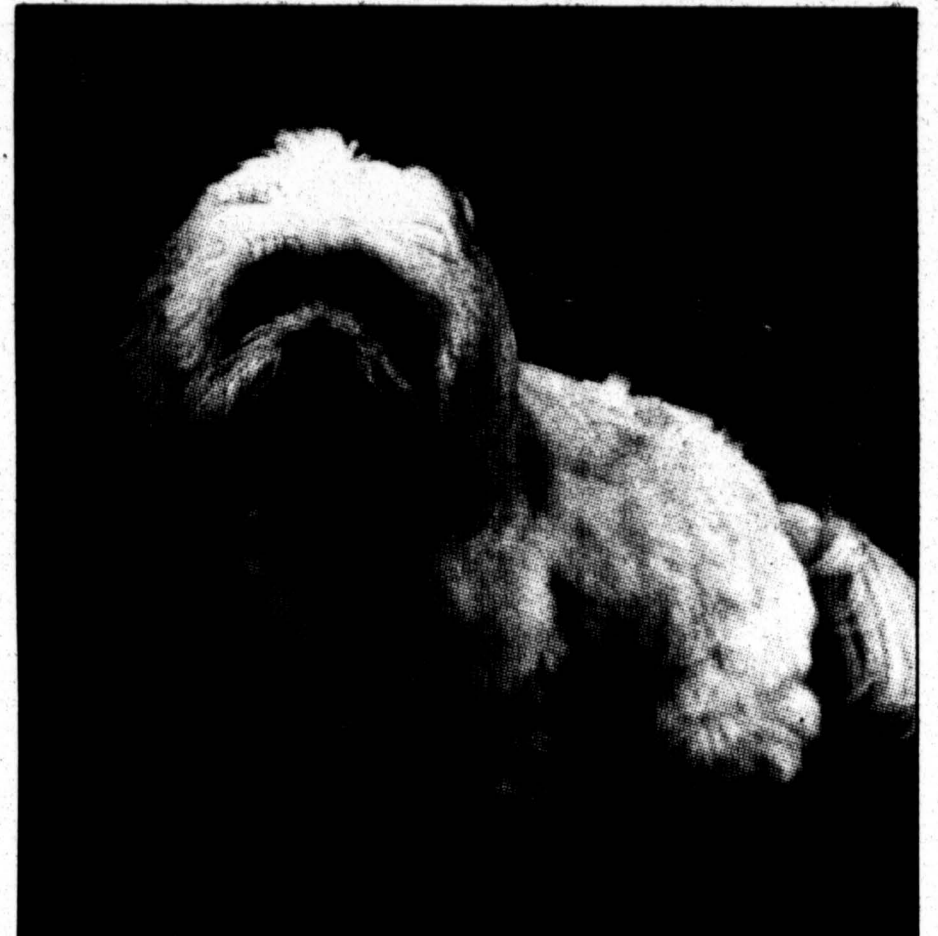

Mr. Divo was born on Valentine's Day, 2003, which is appropriate, Mom Linda said, because "he is the love of my life." He rarely gets into trouble, with the exception of occasionally chewing up paper he finds in the waste baskets around the house and socks that are lying about. When Mom has dinner guests, his favorite game is to sneak under the dining table and slyly pull the napkins from their laps.

Mr. Divo has a grown-up sister and brother: Sis Whitney, 23, a movie actress who lives in Los Angeles, and brother Huston, 25, an energy trader in Texas.

When Mr. Divo heard he would be in The Pine Cone's Sandy Claws column on Friday, Aug. 19, his ears pricked up. Taking this reporter aside, he confided it would be Mom Linda's birthday on Friday and asked if he could wish her a happy birthday in print.

OK, Mr. Divo, you got it:

Happy birthday, Mom Linda!

Observatory will have a good view of life on the ocean floor

By CHRIS COUNTS

IF AN ambitious project proposed by the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute survives the permit process, by next summer nearly 32 miles of fiber optic cable will be buried beneath the ocean floor, and an observatory manned by robots will be constructed 3,000 feet under the surface of Monterey Bay.

At a meeting last week in Costa Mesa, the California Coastal Commission postponed a decision on whether to allow MBARI to bury the cable. Despite the delay, MBARI public affairs representative Kim Fulton-Bennett said the research institute hopes to install the cable in November.

The completed observatory will cost $12 million to $14 million, Fulton-Bennett said. About half the price tag will be paid for by a $7 million tax grant from National Science Foundation, and the rest of the bill will be covered by MBARI and other research institutions.

Named MARS — which stands for Monterey Accelerated Research System — the unmanned observatory will be located about 25 miles offshore.

According to Fulton-Bennett, the observatory represents a groundbreaking step in the advancement of marine research.

"Robots will crawl around the ocean floor

The proposed undersea fibre-optic cable would traverse the floor of Monterey Bay on its way to a groundbreaking marine research project proposed by the Monterey Bay Aquarium Research Institute.

taking samples," he said. "They will measure the chemical properties of the ocean floor and study microscopic animals."

The observatory will also provide seismologists with data that could help predict earthquakes. Fulton-Bennett said "very expensive" instruments are currently recording earthquake data, but without the fiber optic cable, the devices need to be retrieved to access the information.

"We can find out about an earthquake that happened six months ago, but we can't find out about one happening now," he said.

The observatory could begin operating in early 2006, Fulton-Bennett said. By next summer, he hopes the public will be able to view live footage captured undersea via the Internet.

The coastal commission postponed the hearing on the MBARI proposal last week due to staffing shortages, explained spokesperson Sarah Christie.

"It was simply a workload issue," Christie said. "We had all our staff on the offshore oil issue. We had to review 36 oil leases and we had to do it in 90 days. It was an enormous undertaking. Our staff has been working seven days a week."

Christie said the coastal commission will conduct a hearing on the MBARI cable proposal at its next meeting Sept. 14-16 in Eureka.

According to Fulton-Bennett, the project is a pilot program for a much larger and more ambitious project.

"The U.S. and Canada are planning a multi-hub system off the coast of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia," he said. "It's called Project Neptune and it might not get off the ground for five or 10 years. We're talking about laying thousands of miles of cable on the ocean floor."

Water 'town hall' Thursday

MONTEREY PENINSULA water officials will discuss options for ending the area's perpetual water shortage Thursday at the Embassy Suites, 1441 Canyon del Rey in Seaside.

The Aug. 25 meeting will begin at 5 p.m., when visitors can view displays describing possible projects and speak one on one with their proponents.

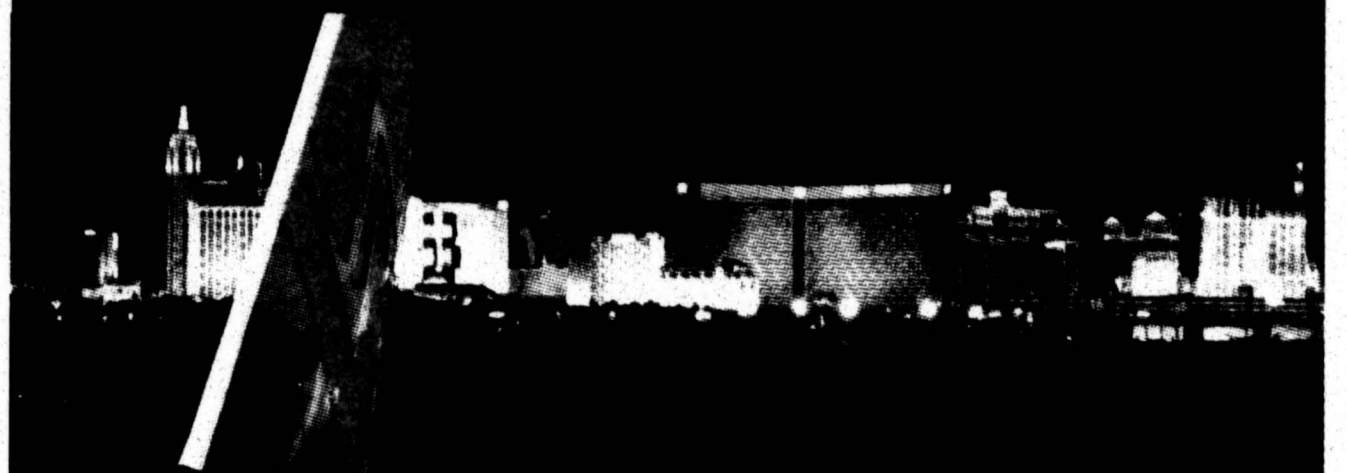

Presentations and a panel discussion will begin at 6:30 p.m., when the public will be able to raise questions on desalination, aquifer storage and recovery, recycled wastewater and other proposals.

One water board member, Judi Lehman, is up for reelection this November. She has been challenged by former board member Ron Chesshire. Alvin Edwards' seat is also up, but he has no opposition.

Need a break from all those beautiful cars? Check out the local jazz scene . . .

RESPECTED FOR her creative and distinct repertoire, jazz vocalist Paula West will sing choice selections — chestnuts if you will — from the Great American Songbook Saturday, Aug. 20, at the Jazz and Blues Company in downtown Carmel. A San Francisco resident, West performs annually to sell-out houses at The Plush Room in San Francisco and The Oak Room in New York's Algonquin Hotel, and at major jazz festivals throughout the country, including the 2004 Monterey Jazz Festival. She has also shared the bill with numerous jazz luminaries including Rosemary Clooney, Mose Allison, Freddy Cole, Oscar Brown Jr., Mavis Staples and Dave Frishberg.

With three critically acclaimed albums to her credit, the diva's career continues to rise. Performing regularly with The Eric Reed Trio, some of her recent highlights include appearances at Jazz at Lincoln Center, Sculler's, Jazz Aspen and a performance at The White House in a salute to American writers. In 2004 and 2005 she was awarded the New York Nightlife Award for Outstanding Female Jazz Vocalist.

On Aug. 27, sophisticated local lady Shelly Cullin returns to the Jazz and Blues Company to perform and will be joined by vocalist Shana Carlson, guitarist Steve Ezzo and bassist Dan Robbins. A resident of the Monterey Peninsula since 1980, Cullin began her long and illustrious career in the '40s in Hollywood doing voiceover work for Paramount Studios which led to radio work and eventually a part in the the Hollywood Theater revue "Lend an Ear." She was a featured soloist with Xavier Cugat at the famous Hollywood nightclub, Ciro's, where she sang popular Latin numbers of the day, like "Tico Tico." Cullin, who released her latest CD, "I Only Have Eyes For You," in 1998, delivers her songs with class and elegance, and her repertoire is a tasteful blend of jazz classics and tunes from the Great American Songbook. KRML performances start at 7:30 p.m. Call (831) 624-6431 for reservations.

Performing Aug. 20 at 6 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency in Monterey, saxophonist and flautist Paul Contos has been an important part of the local music scene for more than two decades, serving as a traveling clinician for the Monterey Jazz Festival's education program since 1984. He is also a part-time faculty member at the music and performing arts department at Cal State University Monterey Bay.

The Director of the MJF Next Generation Jazz Orchestra, Contos is a master at combining technical wizardry and musical fluidity. As a concert performer, he has toured Europe and Japan and played with Dizzy Gillespie, Sarah Vaughn, Mundell Lowe, Clark Terry, Roy Hargrove, Jon Hendricks, Sheila Jordan, Alex Acuña, Poncho Sánchez, Rebecca Mauleón and others. He will be accompanied at the Hyatt Regency this Saturday by drummer David Morwood, guitarist Gino Raugi and bassist Rob Fisher. The group also performs at 5:30 p.m. at the Hyatt on Friday, Aug. 26. For more information, call (831) 372-1234.

A variety of live music can be heard at venues throughout the Monterey Peninsula this Concours d'Elegance and historic car race weekend (the busiest tourist weekend of the year), including dance bands Vintage and Masters of the Old School on time to thoroughly review and digest it."

During budget talks more than a year ago, the city council decided to pursue the possible sale of some city property, including Flanders Mansion, the Scout House and Rio Park. It hired a realtor to assist in selling Flanders and — after being advised by attorneys it had no choice — voted to spend $100,000 on an EIR. The first draft of the EIR was released in April; the revised draft, incorporating comments from more than 50 letter writers, was issued Aug. 10.

"I believe the time constraints of receiving this very long document are just too much for the average citizen to handle in such a short period and ask that you continue it so we can have a thorough discussion of it," said Karen Ferlito, who lives near Mission Trail park. "And if Carmel didn't have the park property it has right now and were going out to buy it, we couldn't touch the park land, value wise, that we already own. This is a legacy for people that is very, very much in danger of being lost."

Several other residents decried the potential Flanders sale as a shortsighted means of funding capital projects — the main reason the council is pursuing the sale. Council members have also said putting the mansion in private hands is the best way to preserve it.

Vote or no vote?

Whether the sale of Flanders requires a public vote turns on the question of whether the mansion is a park, commissioners were told. According to the EIR, city attorneys do not agree about this.

Lloyd said the conflict arose because somebody at city hall wants to avoid an election and brought in another attorney to bolster that point of view.

"It appears the city council has gone outside its city attorney to get another opinion saying we don't need to have a public vote," he said. "I don't think that's good government or fair."

But Roseth said former Monterey City Attorney Bill Connors was hired to assist city attorney Don Freeman because he has experience with the sale of publicly owned historic properties.

Connors' advice was that "Flanders and the property immediately around it did not qualify as park land, not because of zoning, but because of its use," Roseth said. Flanders is zoned as improved park land, which allows it to be used as a private home, offices, a museum, or a hotel or bed and breakfast. For years it has been a residence or offices, not a park, Roseth said.

Chairman Bill Strid said each side of this argument should be articulated in the EIR so the city can choose which answer is right.

"I'm concerned the EIR only addresses the conditions and mitigation if we accept one of the expert opinions, that being it is not park land," he said. "However, if is park land, the EIR is silent on what the mitigation and effects would be, and I find that to be disturbing."

The commission voted unanimously to continue its discussion of the Flanders EIR to Sept. 7 at 2 p.m. at city hall. In the meantime, Roseth will be busy gathering information commissioners requested, including:

- why building a parking garage under First Murphy to bring in revenue was not discussed in the EIR as an alternative to selling Flanders;

- whether a new alternative in the revised EIR involving a lot-line adjustment to sell a smaller piece of land around Flanders was significant enough to require recirculation of the document for public review, comments and revision;

- attorneys' comments on whether the mansion should be considered a park;

- what potential general plan conflicts arise if the property is a park, because a project that violates the general plan or LCP would be illegal;

- a flow chart showing the process for selling the property, depending on its classification;

- input from Carmel Fire Department, because the fire access road through the Mission Trail Park terminates at the Flanders Mansion driveway; and

- additional documents, including a plan for preserving the mansion.

Is city hall trying to avoid a public vote on the sale of Flanders Mansion?

Four-wheeled treasures represent Peninsula's Little Italy

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CONCORSO ITALIANO — Friday's over-the-top celebration of Italy's colorful automotive industry — will include more than 30 Peninsula residents among the cast of hundreds coming from all over the globe to show off the cars they cherish.

Some scraped their pennies together to make the big purchase; others perused auctions for years, spying the right car and waiting for the auctioneer's gavel to bang in their favor. And sometimes, the cars found them.

today's "Sunshine Report."

1977 Morgan — Monterey attorney Norman Anthony was surprised to find out he owned a 1983 Ferrari Mondial Cabriolet convertible one merry Saturday morning six years ago.

"I wondered why all my friends were gathered at the house, and she came driving up the driveway in it," he said of his wife and law partner, Brenda Murdock, who had bought the car for him. "I was speechless."

She didn't even make him get rid of the Morgan. But he, not surprisingly, found he wasn't driving the small car as much as he should, so he found an overjoyed buyer to take it.

"I'm fairly tall, and people used to laugh at me, because they said I looked like I was wearing the Morgan," he said. "But the Ferrari is perfect for a very tall person. It's a fun car to drive; it sounds great and looks great."

He had eyed the very same Mondial the year before when it was shown at Concorso Italiano by a man who said his wife wouldn't let him keep it.

That man's ball and chain was a blessing for Anthony, a great fan of Battista Pinin Farina, the designer of many Ferraris and Alfa Romeos, the featured marque of this year's vintage car week.

"His view was that cars pollute and are generally a nuisance, but if we have to have them, they should be works of art going down the street," Anthony summarized.

He will drive his bright-red masterpiece to Concorso Italiano and happily park it among its brethren on the fairways of Black Horse Golf Course Aug. 19, but he's opted out of having it judged during the show.

"You have to be slightly fanatic to do that," he said, recounting a shouting match he once witnessed between a

Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance contestant and a judge over the authenticity of the muffler on the man's French automobile. "I think the owner won, finally."

His Ferrari may not be competing, but Anthony and his car-loving friends and family have a competition of their own.

"We always say we're testing to see if we can get too much cars, and so far, we haven't gotten to that point," he said. "I do this crazy stuff all week — dealing with divorce and all that — so it's kind of fun just to go out on the weekend and deal with cars."

RIDER

and feistiness. Eaton bought the horse six years ago at the age of 4. "Arabs are pretty tough, and he's a great example of tough."

He trained Yahoo for the Tevis, taking him on tough trails and competing in 50 or 60 shorter competitive rides that put more than 2,500 miles on the horse's official American Endurance Ride Conference clock.

"This was the first time I've ever attempted something quite as grueling," he said.

With temperatures soaring above 100 degrees during the race, the vets imposed stricter standards horses had to meet in order to continue, but Yahoo passed without a hitch.

Eaton also credited his crew, which included his wife, Peggy Eaton, and three other "horsey girls," for taking such good care of Yahoo during those stops.

And a daylight training ride through the areas he and Yahoo would encounter in the dark during the Tevis also paid off.

"When he got to the point where he realized where he was, he was like a locomotive — he just kept going," he said.

Eaton was thrilled to cross the finish line in 23-and-a-half hours, just before daylight broke.

Next year, the husband-and-wife team plan to return, though Peggy will be in the saddle and he will be armed with horse feed and wet sponges at the checkpoints.

The following year, Eaton hopes his adult daughter, Sarah, will ride. All will be astride Yahoo, of course.

The family owns several horses and is seeking county approval to open a boarding stable on property at Tassajara and Carmel Valley roads.

Eaton, who works a building contractor, said he would happily hang up his tool belt to work full time with horses.

"Horses are probably the cheapest therapy you could ever have. You get so connected to them," he said.

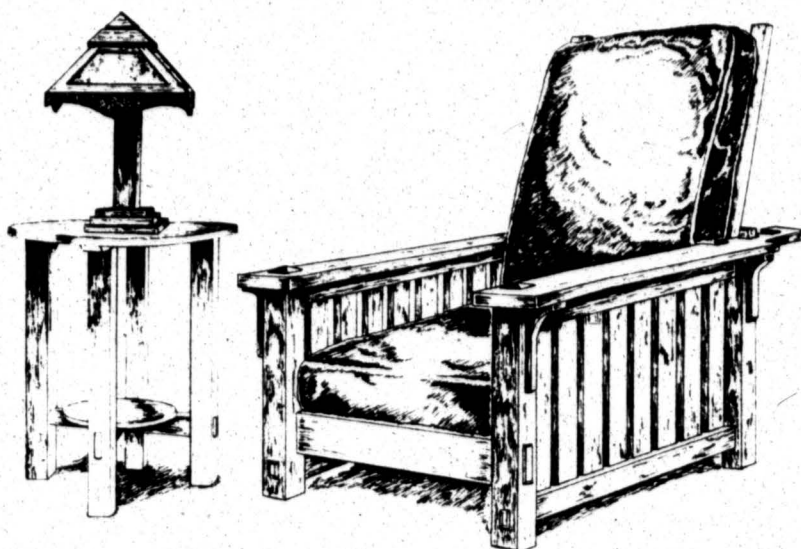

"I used to race motorcycles, but with horses, you are working with another mind — another being you want to enjoy things as much as you are."

and was also accompanying the hikers from Carmel.

While Miller and Lester attended to the injured hikers, the man who discovered the victims ran more than 4 miles to a campground in Little Yosemite Valley. The book tells the story of how he found park ranger Colin Campbell brushing his teeth.

Meanwhile, Solon-Husby became aware of the accident when a dazed hiker straggled into the Carmel group's campsite.

"He looked like he was on drugs," recalled Solon-Husby, now an art teacher who lives in Pacific Grove. "He was saying, 'My friends are dead.'"

Solon-Husby and a Carmel High student, Winston Aucutt, took off running in the direction of Little Yosemite Valley in the dark to find help.

"I knew there was a chance that a ranger or a trail crew would be in the valley," Solon-Husby remembered. "We found a trail crew camp, but only one person was there, and he didn't have a radio. Just moments later, by pure chance, a ranger came up on horseback." According to Solon-Husby, the ranger was Campbell — the same Campbell who, according to the book, was alerted while brushing his teeth.

Solon-Husby is sure her version is right. And she remembers being frustrated that Campbell "didn't believe us, and we had to convince him we were telling the truth." Finally he radioed for help.

Reached at Padre Island National Seashore in Texas, where he works as a ranger, Campbell said his memory of events that day is a little hazy.

"It was quite a while ago, and a lot of things happened that evening," Campbell said. "I do recall my horse, John Paul, was already tethered. It was late and I remember brushing my teeth when two folks came up and reported the incident. I can't remember if one of them was a woman."

Shortly after calling in the incident, Campbell and the trail-camp crew member rushed to the top of Half Dome with oxygen and other medical supplies. Campbell painfully hiked several miles in cowboy boots before asking a hiker to loan him his shoes.

What happened after Campbell started his hike toward Half Dome was perhaps the most astonishing part of the story. In Modesto, located about 100 miles west of Yosemite, an air ambulance service called Medi-Flight dispatched a helicopter to Half Dome.

"I wasn't even considering the possibility of a night flight," Campbell said. "We had never done it before."

Thankfully, the pilot on duty was Al Major, a Vietnam veteran and a recipient of the Bronze Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross and 53 other Air Medal awards. After Major airlifted the two seriously injured hikers from Half Dome, witnesses agreed the young men would not have lived had rescue efforts waited for daylight.

The two seriously injured hikers who survived the ordeal — Tom Rice of Los Gatos and Bruce Weiner of Mountain View — recovered and have gone on to live relatively normal lives, although Weiner has some physical limitations. The two hikers who died were Robert Frith of Mountain View and Brian Jordan of Hayward. The fifth hiker, Adrian Estaban of Sunnyvale, survived virtually unscathed. He was Madgic's chief source in the research for the book.

Curiously, Solon-Husby met Rice, the leader of the ill-fated hiking group, shortly before the incident.

"I told them the weather was very bad and they probably shouldn't go up," she said. "[Rice] just about bit my head off. He said he wasn't afraid of the weather." Several other hikers present that day also related similar dialogues with Rice, according to the book.

The Carmel Pine Cone featured the story on its front page on Aug. 1, 1985. The article credits another Carmel group leader, Jymi Friday, as the first person arriving at the top of Half Dome after the incident.

If Madgic had seen the article, perhaps the book would have turned out differently. In an interview this week, Madgic said Miller and Lester were the two most important figures he was unable to locate.

He called the new information "more pieces of the puzzle." Regarding Solon-Husby, he called her story "interesting," but stuck to his belief that other hikers notified

Campbell of the incident.

Like Campbell, Anne Brocchini has a hazy recollection of events that happened two decades ago.

A 1986 graduate of Carmel High, Brocchini sprained her ankle on the trip, but she eventually made it to the top of Half Dome after the lightning storm passed.

"It's so long ago, and memories shift," said Brocchini, who lives in San Mateo and is the mother of an 8-month-old girl, Lena. "When we got up there, we heard someone had gone off the cliff, but we didn't know the condition of the others."

Nevertheless, Brocchini said members of the Carmel group were profoundly affected by the experience. "We spent a lot of time debriefing," she recalled. "We did some heavy processing. But it wasn't so traumatic, because we had people there who supported us. The leaders were fantastic."

CONCORSO

Through the Tuscan hills

Chateau Julien owner Bob Brower bought a Dino 246 six years ago and a rare 275 GTS Spyder five years ago at the Brooks auction held alongside Concorso Italiano when it was at Quail Lodge.

Concorso has since relocated to Seaside, and the Brooks sale is no more, but Browers' Ferraris remain the main attractions in his garage.

Their arrival marked the rekindling of the New York-born Brower's romance with intriguing automobiles. It began in the 1970s with a vintage Mercedes and grew to include an exotic Italian De Tomaso Pantera, but his hobby went on hiatus after he sold his interest in a petroleum business so he and his wife, Patty, could pursue their dream of living on the West Coast. Captivated by Carmel, they opened their winery near mid-valley in 1982 and moved to Carmel Valley Ranch.

With the winery humming along, he had time for cars again and after a few years of hunting, brought home the Dino — "a real head turner" that seemed built for his 5-foot-9-inch frame — and then the Spyder — which hails from the days when Enzo Ferrari built his cars by hand.

The Spyder came with a bonus. Last June, Brower found himself among 50 enthusiasts invited to race through the Tuscan hills from one luscious meal or lovely hotel to another in celebration of the model's 40th anniversary.

"We had a police escort most of the time, and a sticker that said not to give us a ticket the rest of the time," he said. "It was a get-out-of-jail-free card. It wrecked my life!"

It also made him realize the magnitude of Italians' appreciation for all things automotive.

"Italy just loves its cars," he said. "People were lined up watching us race through the hills."

On Friday, the Spyder will have to settle for looking fast while sitting still, but Brower is confident it will win the Concorso judges' hearts.

"We're talking about a car that's 40 years old, and it's perfect," he said.

And with the Italian car collector's adage, "Always add; never subtract," in mind, Brower promised he would find time to attend the weekend's auctions as well.

"I'm always shopping," he said.

A red spider

"According to my mother, if I had been a girl, I was going to be named Lucy," said attorney Ron Parravano. "And then there was Lucy Ricardo, with that red hair, so I figured that was the perfect name for her."

He was talking about his red 1969 Alfa Romeo Spider, of course. He bought Lucy from fellow Carmel Valley resident Bill Parsons about four years ago. "She runs like a charm," Parravano said.

Impeccably restored and perpetually topless, the Alfa Romeo convertible is Parravano's weekend and sunny-day "fun car." He and his wife, Michelle, spend the rest of the time in their "regular cars," a Honda CRV and a Volkswagen van.

He'd always wanted an Italian sports car that wouldn't cost six figures, and the Spider seemed a perfect nod to his dad, Tony, the son of Italian immigrants and owner of a well-stocked Southern California racing stable of Ferraris and Maseratis.

The younger Parravano, born in 1948, can still vividly

RESERVE CARE: YOUR CONTINGENCY PLAN

Many of our clients come to us following an unexpected illness or injury requiring hospitalization and affecting the person's ability to be at home without assistance. The hospital typically will not discharge patients until a follow-up care plan is in place, so everybody scrambles around trying to find the right care facility or home care agency on short notice. This creates stress and can result in an uninformed choice among options for home care.

Through our Reserve Care Program, we meet with you in advance to find out what's important to you, explain all the options available and take care of the paperwork. Then, if an emergency arises, you're ready. We'll work with you, your family and your doctor to assure that you are comfortably at home with just the right amount of personal assistance. We can also coordinate with home health or therapy services, arrange for any necessary home repairs, take you to appointments and otherwise make life easier so you can use your energy to get well.

There's no cost to enroll in the Reserve Care Program until you actually use our services. Think of it as your contingency plan...because it means you have provided for the future.

In some cases, the cultivators will live in tents at their site for months and are often aggressive when inadvertently stumbled upon by hikers or found by drug agents. During a recent raid in Santa Clara County, a state warden was shot in the legs.

Be Water Wise

Simple cuts in household water use can help you save both water and money every day.

By following these easy indoor water-saving tips, we can maintain water levels in the Carmel River that enhance habitat and protect threatened species and stay within state-imposed water use limits.

- Install low-flow showerheads and faucets in your home.
- Take quick showers instead of baths. Reducing showers by one-minute can save 5-10 gallons of water per shower.
- Run washing machines and dishwashers only when full. Whenever possible, don't pre-rinse your dishes before loading.
- Check for and repair faucet leaks. A dripping faucet can waste as much as 140 gallons of water each month.
- Replace your old washing machine or toilet with a new high-efficiency washer or ultra low-flush toilet. They use 40-60 percent less water and as a California American Water customer you are eligible for rebates of $100 off the purchase price of each appliance.

For additional information about California American Water's rebate program or to receive a complimentary low-flow showerhead or hose nozzle, email us at monterey@amwater.com or call (888) 237-1333.

recall the "pioneer days of American road racing," when drivers like the legendary Carroll Shelby raced for his dad in the 1950s.

"I couldn't have had a more exciting time, going to the races, being in the pits and the excitement of the track," he said. The family traveled all over the states and Europe.

His father was "big time" in the racing world, Parravano recalled, but the Manhattan Beach man, amidst serious financial troubles, disappeared in April 1960.

He was never found, and the family suspects he has long been dead.

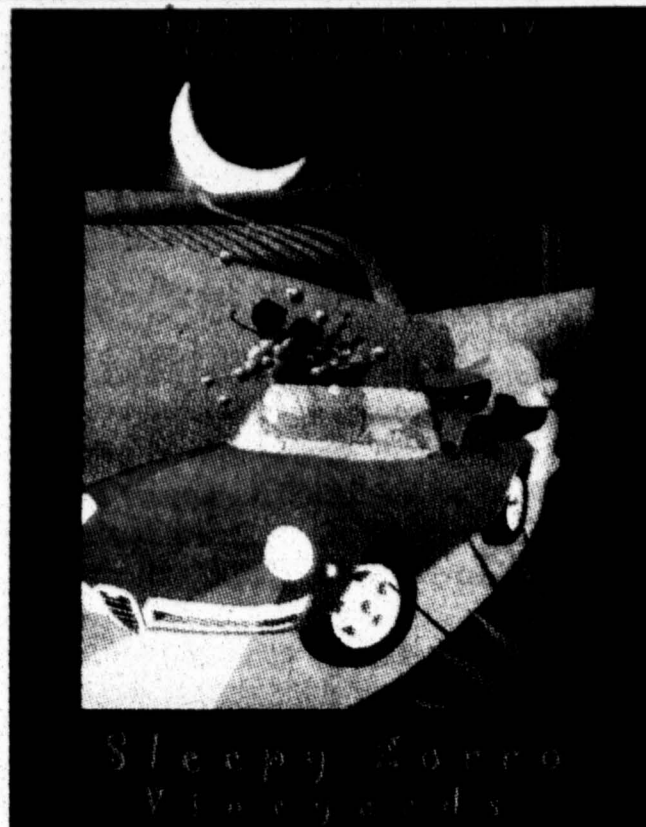

But Tony Parravano's cars can still be spotted at Concorso Italiano and the Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races at Laguna Seca.

"The races are a great celebration of the old vintage days I remember as a kid," Ron Parravano said.

Out of print and valuable

Six years ago, Parravano co-authored a book that included a chapter about his father.

His mother and other family members come to celebrate vintage car week, spending time at Concorso, where Lucy will share a spot of manicured fairway along with other Alfas, and the races, where she will be driven, but not on the track.

In fact, Lucy has such a spot in the Parravanos' hearts that she ended up on the private-label Chardonnay he makes with grapes planted in his back yard. A red fox is behind the wheel.

Tickets to the Aug. 19 Concorso Italiano, held at Black Horse Golf Course in Seaside, are available at the gate for $100. Heritage society presents talk on Steinbeck's life in P.G.

AN AUTHORITY on the life of John Steinbeck will present a talk, "John Steinbeck's Place of Heart, Pacific Grove," at the Pacific Grove Middle School Aug. 26 at 7 p.m.

Susan Shillinglaw, a professor at the Center for Steinbeck Studies in San Jose, will talk about the author's relationship with P.G.

"Pacific Grove was Steinbeck's second home as a child, his beloved house by the sea," Shillinglaw said. "He loved the simplicity of the family summer cottage, which came to represent, for him, a place that restored his soul. He returned repeatedly."

According to Shillinglaw, Pacific Grove during the Great Depression turned out to be an ideal location for Steinbeck to focus on his writing.

"He needed silence," she said. "He needed to be alone to write. He needed a familiar setting, a tiny workroom, friends and family close by, and a dog."

Shillinglaw believes the people, culture and history of Pacific Grove "profoundly influenced Steinbeck's work."

The middle school is located on Forest Avenue, between Hillcrest and Sinex avenues. The event is sponsored by the Heritage Society of Pacific Grove.

The "Custom" Home Equity Loan

Discovering that you need to pull some of your equity out of your home, you face the question of which of several loans to use.

1. You could simply refinance your home, adding to the size of the loan to cover the money you need. The problem here is that you are committing yourself to paying off the added loan, and the old loan balance, with a new 30-year loan. This results in the lowest monthly payment of all your options, but 30 years of interest eventually turn your costs into a mountain.

2. You could take out a home equity loan, essentially what we've traditionally called a "second" loan (because it is the second loan secured by your home, after your primary mortgage). This will bear a higher interest rate, will give you the money you need in one lump sum, and will require repayment with regular monthly payments over several years.

3. You could take out a home equity line of credit, very like a credit card attached to your home equity. You would make monthly payments only on the money you borrow, so you could borrow only small amounts as you need them. But your interest rate would adjust to market rates over time.

4. You could choose a new hybrid home equity loan, and we'll get to that in another column. Meanwhile, be aware that it will serve you well to study the available loan programs. You can virtually create a custom program that meets your specific needs. For assistance call Maureen at 622-2565 and visit her website at www.maureenmason.com.

Editorial

Hypocrisy and silliness

A PACIFIC Grove property owner who's been told he can't drill a well on his vacant land unless he has a Cal-Am hookup first has quite a few people to thank for his Catch-22. And he can start with local water activists, whose hypocrisy is remarkable.

Back in 1995, they convinced the state water control board to declare most of the Peninsula's water supply illegal.

The justification for this decision was the purported damage being done to the habitat along the Carmel River by overpumping. To protect the river's flora and fauna, the activists arranged for this community to be ordered to stop drawing most of its water from the river — a feat the state said was to be accomplished in the long term by creation of a large, new water project (a $100-million-plus desal plant in Moss Landing is the latest proposal), and in the short-term by strict conservation measures and a moratorium on new water hookups.

But there's another way to reduce pumping from the Carmel River: Drill lots of new wells outside the river's watershed — because every drop of water drawn from a well in Pebble Beach or Pacific Grove is a drop that doesn't have to be pumped from the river.

But instead of lobbying the Peninsula's city councils and the board of supervisors to promote well drilling, the activists regularly do the opposite. The reason is as plain as the faucet on your kitchen sink: What the activists really want isn't restoration of the river. It's a halt to development. All development. That's why they don't want wells drilled in Pacific Grove or anywhere else.

But what about the supposedly responsible P.G. City Council that made the decision that well drilling was to be prohibited except when a property owner already has a water hookup? The reasoning advanced by city attorney David Laredo was that a well would ipso facto not be a reliable water supply. So unreliable would the well be, according to Laredo, the city would have to assume that eventually a house that relied on the well would need some sort of emergency hookup to the Cal-Am system — a risk the city could not take because the Cal-Am system, as we have just explained, has no water to spare.

This silly reasoning ignores the fact that wells are the most common source of water for domestic consumption in the world and have been used for thousands of years by millions of people with no difficulty whatsoever. Even layers of seemingly impenetrable granite, such as those that lie beneath Pacific Grove, commonly have substantial fractures filled with very large quantities of fresh water. (Most homes in the Sierra Nevada mountains rely on exactly this type of fractured-granite well.)

The city attorney's advice also ignores the fact that county health regulations already require private wells to be tested for quality and quantity before they are used to supply homes. The rules have been in effect for decades and have never been shown to be defective.

Can any private well be guaranteed never to run dry? Of course not. But the small chance that a well that passed the health department's strict tests might fail anyway has to be weighed against the property owner's constitutional right to make some use of his land.

It also has to be weighed against this fact: With the state's 1995 cutback order still hanging over the community's heads, and with no drought reserve in place after all these years, who says the water pipeline that runs down the middle of your street is reliable?

Letters to the Editor

The Pine Cone encourages submission of letters which address issues of public importance. The Pine Cone reserves the right to determine which letters are suitable for publication. Pine Cone role in abalone conspiracy?

Dear Editor,

I have to believe that if Victor Hugo had had abalones in mind when he wrote "Les Miserables," he would not have done a more honest job than you.

But then he was a French novelist with a real issue to give him direction. You are only an American ideologue (libertarian? reganite? "neocon"?) with the First Amendment behind which to hide and no necessity to argue from fact or truth or even good faith.

At least you got the letter from the Watsons (Aug. 12), with its straightforward exasperation at your mendacity. And you even had the gall to publish it — but with no intimation that it directly dealt with your conscious ideological falsification.

Don't suggest that somehow you did not have the necessary facts. You have the same access to accurate reporting that all the rest of the Central Coast had. You knew that Ty Van Lieu had an established criminal record for abalone poaching. You knew his claim that he was merely "feeding his family" was a fraud. And so on.

Or shall we conclude that The Carmel Pine Cone is in a criminal conspiracy against abalone?

Philip B. Taylor, Monterey

Kudos to Bates

Dear Editor,

"Ole!" to Bill Bates for his latest editorial cartoon (Aug. 12) with the wonderful image of Jo Mora's "The Greeting" in The Carmel Pine Cone!

Mr. Bates continues to humorously and refreshingly convey much about our way of life to readers. Specifically, this time he projected a kind and contemporary exchange with a Carmel-by-the-Sea treasure by another important artist and gracious commentator on our heritage and surroundings. As a fan of both Mr. Bates and the late Mr. Mora, this cartoon was a delightful reminder of the importance of art and expression in our community.

Thank you, Bill Bates and The Pine Cone.

are in effect all teaching the same course, Biasotti said. Faculty regularly confer on what they expect students to know and be able to do as they progress through the grades, so that pupils will not have gaps in their learning.

And teachers have developed a better understanding of the cognitive skills the exams are designed to assess, according to Biasotti. "The biggest single contributing factor to why these scores rose as much as they did is the hard work of the classroom teachers," he said.

Also fewer higher-achieving students opted out of taking the tests, and they seemed to take them more seriously, according to Biasotti, particularly at the high school.

The scores will be used to calculate the Academic Performance Index, which is released each spring and shows how well the schools performed in comparison with others.

'All students can do high-level work'

The superintendent said the school system believes "all students can learn and can do high-level work" — so they should not be divided into groups based on perceived learning abilities, he said.

Biasotti touted better measuring of students' progress in the classroom, so that teachers can intervene as early as possible if they need to get a low-performing student on track.

And two new programs high-school programs will welcome students when classes begin Aug. 23.

Freshman Focus will "connect new students with mentors, helping them understand how the system works and getting them grounded in the high school so that it's not an overwhelming experience, but one where they feel supported and cared for," Biasotti said. It will give incoming freshman "a place to turn with the inevitable questions that come up."

Biasotti hopes these changes, and others in the works, will help Carmel Unified students have among the highest graduation rates in the state.

According to Paul Behan, also with CUSD, 89 percent of the high school sophomores, juniors and seniors who took the English language arts exit exam passed it, and 92 percent passed the math exam. The 23 students who failed the English test and 16 who failed the math test can retake them. If their senior year ends without their passing the tests, students receive a "certificate of completion" rather than a high school diploma, according to Behan.

concrete bags collapsed, Lewis explained.

To protect the road against a future collapse, earth anchors will be drilled into the existing topsoil, said Lewis. A rebar framework will be tied to the anchors and a wire mesh will help hold the concrete in place.

"The concrete will be dyed or stained the color of the native rock," Lewis said. "It will be unrecognizable."

If there is no more erosion, the repair project will cost less than $20,000.

Perfect Pairing

The beauty of Monterra with the finest luxury homes

The only thing missing is the moat.

High atop a verdant mountain overlooking a restless sea, there sits an enchanted neighborhood known as Paseo Vista at Monterra. A place whose silence is interrupted only by birdsong, whose serenity is inspired by the presence of a doe and her fawn. A place whose story is told in elderly oaks and wildflower meadows. A place of sunny days, starry nights and spectacular dreams.

Just beyond the guarded gate, a castle rises like a vision in the distance, its magnificent architecture a complement to the landscape. Nestled within the sun-drenched hills of Monterra is the extra-ordinary neighborhood of Paseo Vista.

Consisting of 15 luxurious homes of Spanish and European influences, custom design and exquisite craftsmanship. Starting price is $3 million. From there, it depends on your vision.

Why Hire Lisa Grayson to SELL your Home?

The Price Is Right! Experience shows that the right price sells a home faster than any other factor. When the listing price is set higher than 5% above market value, the price alone discourages buyers. Buyers who do look at an over-priced home know they can get more home for their money elsewhere.

It's About Time! It's my business to help you sell your property as quickly as possible for the highest possible price. My marketing expertise will maximize the number of people who will seriously consider making an offer on your home. A Marketing and Listing Presentation can be provided for at your request. Time is money, the shorter the marketing period, the higher your profit.

Inspector Clouseau? No, I can't produce Peter Sellers to do a home inspection but I can recommend a professional home inspector. Homesellers can benefit from professional home inspections, especially when their property is confirmed to be in good shape - a great marketing tool to attract buyers. Having an inspection conducted before listing a home for sale allows homeowners to correct problems in advance, smoothing the way of closing.

Honey Stop! I love that house! Curb appeal is probably the most critical point in selling. Buyers are apt to fall in love at first sight - or not at all. Let me help you maximize your home's curb appeal. I'll even plant flowers in your front yard!

Receive a FREE appraisal and home inspection with a signed nine month Exclusive Residential Listing Agreement.

The clients I represent are as varied as the homes I sell, and each of them I appreciate for what they bring to the transaction. BATs on the fairway, a great anniversary and a 1,500-mile-long parade

■ Highlights of the 2005 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance

WHEN PEBBLE Beach Concours d'Elegance organizers announced last year that Alfa Romeo would be a featured marque at their 2005 show, they hoped to attract a sizable assortment of vehicles from the 95-year history of the Italian automaker. Their expectations have been greatly exceeded.

The Sunday, Aug. 21 Concours will feature "the most significant display of classic Alfa Romeos ever assembled — anywhere," said Co-Chairman Glenn Mounger. "Among the 62 Alfa Romeos coming to These imaginative concept cars from the 1950s, affectionately known as BAT 5, BAT 7 and BAT 9, will be displayed at the Concours, as they were in 1989.

Pebble Beach, there'll be seven cars from the Alfa Romeo Museum (outside Milan) as well as three of the ultra-imaginative BAT (Berlinetta Aerodinamica Tecnica) concept cars from the '50s."

Overall, 27 of the 62 Alfa Romeos participating at the Concours are being shipped from other countries, including the BAT 5, BAT 7 and BAT 9, which now reside in London.

"The first BAT (5) was built in 1953, when most other carmakers had never even imagined tailfins and long before there was a Batmobile on television," says Mounger.

"The BAT 7, built in 1954, was even more radical in design with huge curved tailfins. And the final BAT — the BAT 9 — was built in 1955 with reduced wings and a design that was closer to a production sports car.

"We're looking forward to an historic reunion of these incredible cars. The last time they appeared together anywhere in the U.S. was the 1989 Pebble Beach Concours."

accomplished another rare automotive feat: In one weekend, he captured the 1955 Pebble Beach Road Race to win the Del Monte Cup and won the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance.

To celebrate the 50th anniversary of this improbable double victory, Hill, with his '55 Ferrari 750 Monza (courtesy of owner Jim Hall) and '31 Pierce-Arrow, will be honored guests at the Concours.

The Pebble Beach Road Race, conducted from 1950-1956 in Del Monte Forest, was advertised as "Thrilling European Style Racing Featuring the World's Fastest Sports Cars." Hill was a three-time winner: 1950 in a Jaguar XK120, 1953 in a Ferrari 250 MM and 1955 in the Ferrari Monza.

"That was a very serious, very competitive race back then," says Hill, noting that the course wrapped through a forest and was driven partly on dirt. "And I remember it raining in '55, so it was especially difficult."

The Concours gave Best of Show honors to modern vehicles during the event's initial five years. Then Hill's '31 Pierce-Arrow took top honors in 1955.

"So much of the bias back then was in favor of Rolls Royce that I didn't expect to win," says Hill, who still owns the '31 Best of Show winner. "Even though I thought I had the best car, I was definitely surprised to win."

Hill, who lives in Santa Monica, retired in 1967 with a 20-year racing resumé that included three wins at the 24 Hours of Le Mans, three wins at the 12 Hours of Sebring and victories in his first race (at age 19) and final race (BOAC 500 at Brands Hatch in England). While his racing days may have concluded, Hill says, he by no means retired from his "obsession with cars."

The 1955 Mille Miglia — a grueling run from Brescia to Rome and back — was no match for legendary racer Stirling Moss (above, at right) and his navigator, Denis Jenkinson, who captured the First Place trophy by finishing in just a bit more than 10 hours. The open-air Mercedes-Benz 300 SLR that carried them to victory will be driven across the judging ramp at Pebble Beach Sunday, with Moss again at the wheel.

He and his wife Alma won the 1977 Pebble Beach Concours Best of Show with their 1927 Packard convertible sedan; he has worked as a TV commentator for ABC's Wide World of Sports, and he writes for numerous publications.

Additionally, his son Derek drives professionally, winning the Barber Dodge Pro Series title in 1997 as well as taking his class at the 1997 24 Hours of Daytona and 12 Hours of Sebring.

"I was a racing buff and a grand prix enthusiast from childhood," says Hill. "I actually remember being a car freak at age 2, and I've truly been lucky that cars have encompassed my whole life."

Hill's Concours calendar includes an appearance at RetroAuto (the new 13,000 square-foot shopping area at the Concours), where he will be signing books and discussing his racing career. And he will serve as an honorary judge at the big Sunday event.

■ First the Concours . . . then a museum

THE LEGENDARY Mercedes-Benz 300 SLR of Sir Stirling Moss will make its final public driving appearance at this year's Pebble Beach Concours. Moss, the British grand prix and long-distance racer who piloted the No. 722 car to victory at Italy's Mille Miglia in 1955, will drive the SLR across the judging ramp in front of The Lodge at Pebble Beach to complete the 50th anniversary celebration of the victory. Following Pebble Beach, the SLR will be retired to the new Mercedes-Benz museum that is currently under construction in Stuttgart, Germany.

Moss, who won 16 grand prix races and was knighted for his driving prowess, feels the '55 Mille Miglia was his greatest race.

"Even now, so many years afterward," he says, "the memory is fresh. Of all the races I entered, and finished, and even of those I won, I can't find another to compare with it."

With his navigator, the late Denis Jenkinson, Moss drove the 990-mile road course (from Brescia to Rome and back) in an amazing 10 hours, seven minutes and 48 seconds at a record average speed of 97.95 mph.

Moss chose Jenkinson, a journalist, because he didn't weigh much and because he developed a written navigation system that is the father of today's "road books" used by World Rally participants.

Jenkinson meticulously recorded the optimum speeds for each corner on long, narrow strips of paper during the test sessions and then read back the information to Moss during the race.

The '55 Mercedes-Benz team at the Mille Miglia also set a historical precedent for quick pit stops. "They cleaned the dead flies off the screen and poured 18 gallons of fuel into the tank," said Moss. "A Mercedes man in a white coat held a tray of cold tea, coffee, chocolate, peeled bananas and anything else you could eat while the refueling was going on. They sent us on our way in just 28 seconds."

Daimler-Benz built the SLR specifically for the 1955 competition season. In the days when road cars typically developed less than 100 horsepower, the SLR made 310 out of a 3-liter, 8-cylinder Formula 1 engine and had an estimated top speed of 186 mph.

In addition to success in the Mille Miglia, the SLR and Moss were also victorious at the Tourist Trophy in Northern Ireland and the Targa Florio in Sicily. The latter win led Mercedes-Benz to the World Sports Car Championship.

Since "retiring" from competition, the No. 722 SLR has been seen at many historic races, including the Monterey Historics and, most recently, the 23rd Historic Mille Miglia in May.

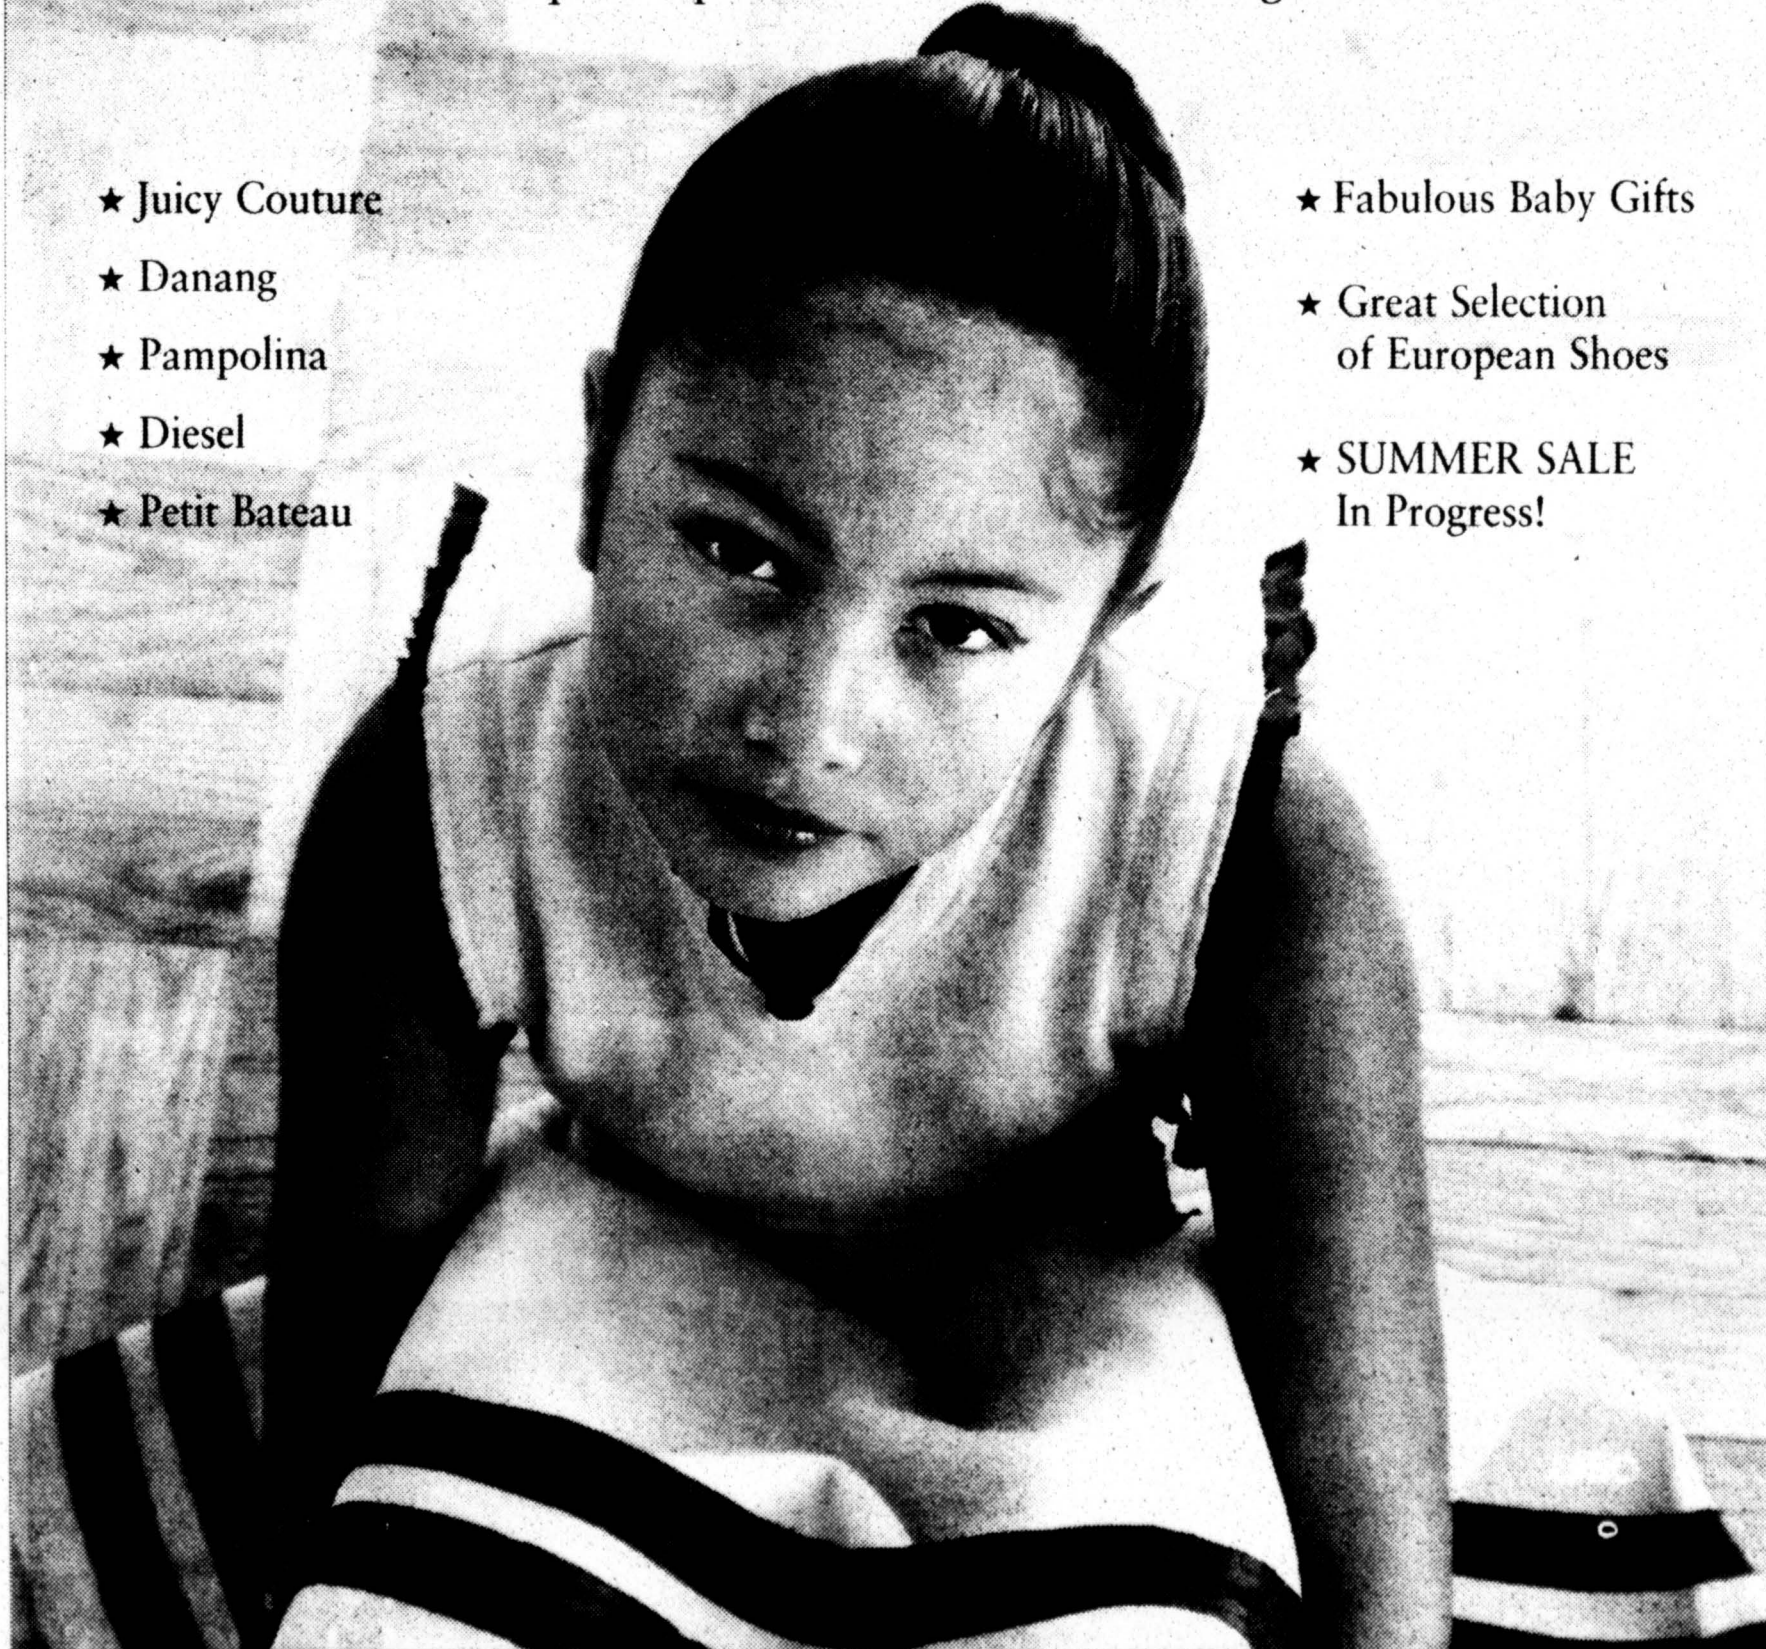

But the Mercedes-Benz factory has decided to place it in a permanent home, so auto enthusiasts will have their final chance for many years to come to see the renowned endurance race car outdoors at the Pebble Beach Concours.

■ The return of the Hot Rods

CUSTOMIZING, A close off-shoot of hot rodding, began on the West Coast in the 1930s and reached its peak as a national trend in the 1960s. The premise was simple. Customizers, both amateur and professional, restyled lower-priced cars like Fords, Mercurys and Chevrolets so they'd resemble expensive brands and later models. With coverage by magazines like Hot Rod and Rod & Custom, the practice of customizing soon spread nationwide.

The Aug. 21 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will showcase this styling trend in its 2005 Hot Rod Class, a specially judged category sponsored by Ford Motor Company.

"We're assembling some of the earliest, most influential examples of custom cars," said Glenn Mounger, co-chairman of the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance. "The earliest customs are arguably the purest in concept, relying on extensive metalwork and selective use of items like grilles, hubcaps and headlamps from other cars of the period. They're beautiful examples of automotive artistry and set trends that continue to this day."

The formative era for custom cars was immediately before and directly after World War II. Body work ranged from chopped and filled hard tops to fender skirts as well as partial-to-complete body de-chroming. Additionally, suspensions were lowered so custom cars assumed a more streamlined look and paint finishes became important, with customizers developing hues like "candy apple red" as well as pearlescent.

"Our intent is to showcase the early history of the Racetrack benefactors drive with heart

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WHEN IT comes to racing vintage automobiles, few have invested more time, more money and more passion in their local tracks than Rodney Smith and Ned Spieker, Jr. One is a retired high-tech exec and the other a successful entrepreneur and real estate investor. Recently the two men "took a financial interest," as they modestly put it, in the track they've been driving during the Monterey Historic Automobile Races for years.

In return, they earned the right to take over Mazda Raceway Laguna Seca for a couple of days each year. To raise money for the nonprofit track improvement fund, they hosted their inaugural Laguna Seca Charity Invitational last month. And the men will again race in the Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races presented by Chrysler Aug. 19-21.

Rodney Smith

"I've always been interested in older cars. Even when I lived in England, I used to collect and restore old sports cars," said Smith, who came to the United States in 1967, first settling on the East Coast. "In those days, you could buy old sports cars for almost nothing and work on them."

He began racing in Sports Car Club of America events in 1969 and continued for a couple of years until he moved west.

Checking out the inaugural Monterey Historic Automobile Races rekindled his need for speed.

"In 1973 Steve Earle was doing the first Monterey Historics, and I heard about it and went down as a spectator," he said. "It was sort of fun."

At the birth of Earle's event, many contestants drove or towed their race cars to the track; large trailers were rare, and spectators numbered in the dozens, not tens of thousands.

It was in that early era that Smith began racing a 1930 Riley, which he continued driving even after taking the helm of high-tech semiconductor company Altera in 1983 as its CEO.

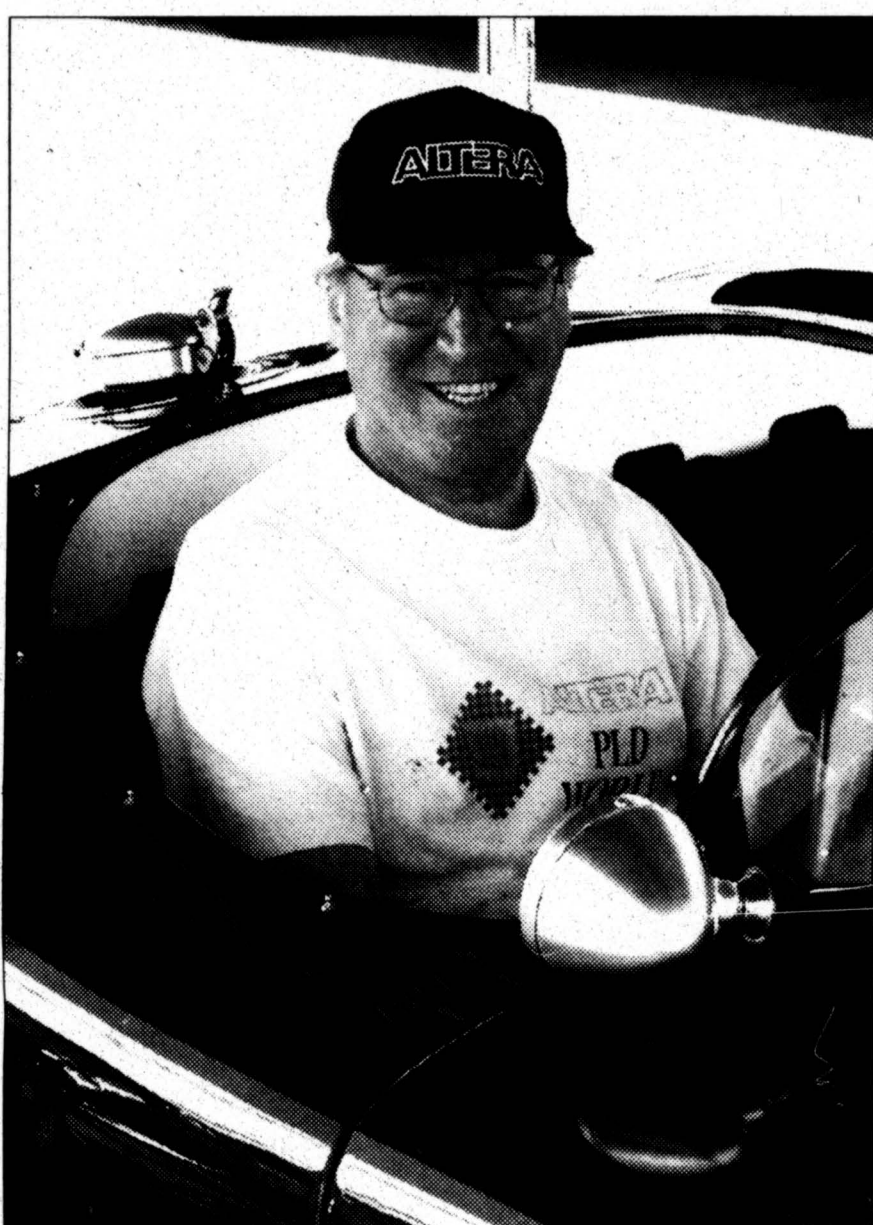

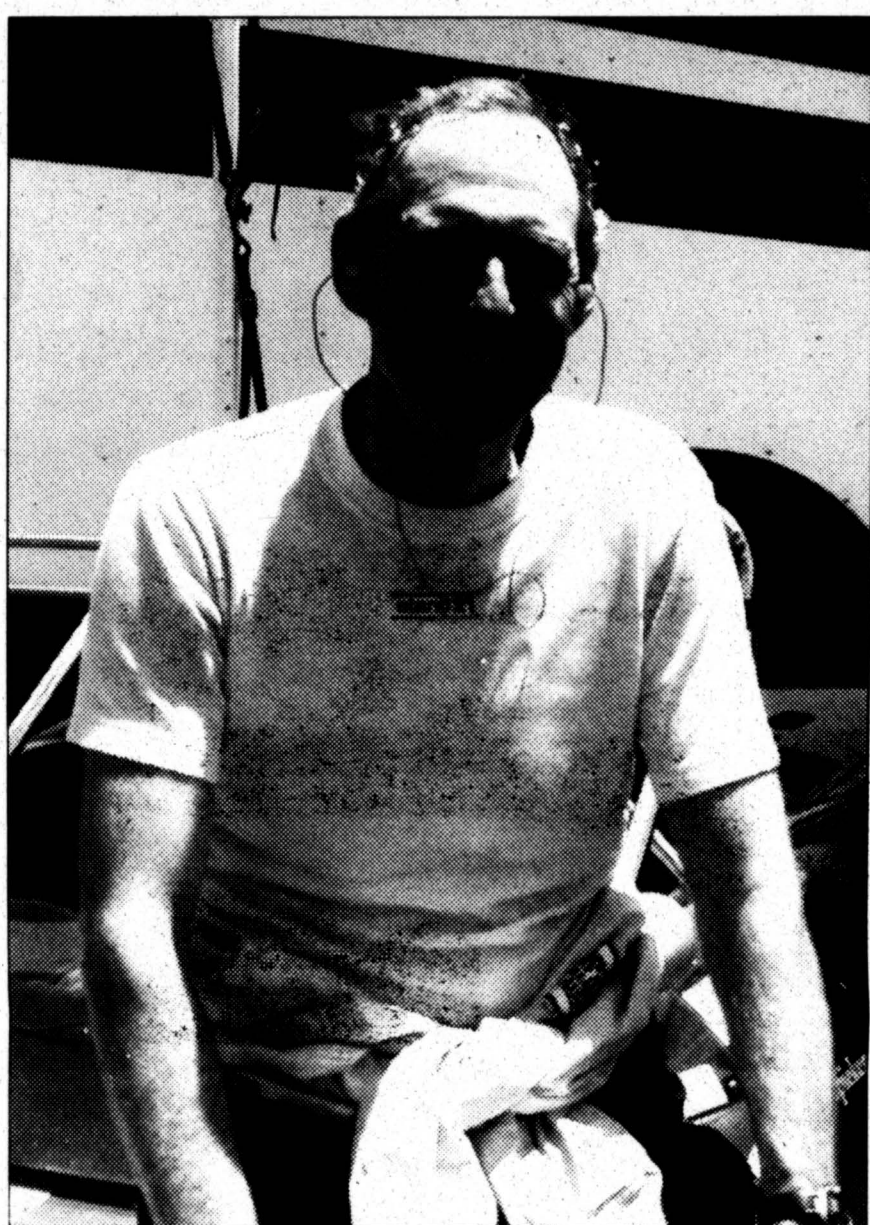

Since retiring in 2000, Smith has more time for vintage racing, including his native country's famous Goodwood Festival of Speed, hosted by the Earl of March.

Though he's "doing it less and less, because it's extremely competitive," Smith regularly finds himself behind the wheel in Europe. He often calls upon friend and Automobile Magazine Executive Editor Mark Gillies to drive with him, or for him.

The two recently shared the driving in Italy's famous Mille Miglia — a 1,000-mile race along the country's open roads — in Smith's Maserati 300S.

"It's basically an exercise in sleep deprivation," he custom car, when talented bodymen, some of whom had earlier worked on custom classic coachwork, turned to restyling," said Ken Gross, Pebble Beach Concours' Hot Rod Class chief judge. "These early customizers and their seminal customs, which include coupes, convertibles and sedans in a variety of colors, started it all, and they deserve to be celebrated. No show has ever gathered all these cars together before and several of the entries have not been seen in public in many decades."

■ 1,500-mile trek to Pebble Beach

PLANES, TRAINS and automobile transports are the preferred modes for shipping rare classic cars, sometimes worth millions of dollars, to the world's most exclusive collector car shows. For this year's Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance, an alternative transportation method debuted — the Pebble Beach Motoring Classic, a scenic 1,500-mile trek from Seattle to Pebble Beach.

"The tales of how cars from across the U.S. and overseas travel to the Concours each year are always part of our event's story," says Pebble Beach Concours Co-Chairman Sandra Kasky. "The Pebble Beach Motoring Classic, a three-state road trip for vehicles previously displayed at our Concours and for this year's participants, will add another way to arrive in Pebble Beach."

The Motoring Classic, which began Monday, Aug. 8, in Seattle, wound through Washington, Oregon and Northern California along mountain roads and Pacific Ocean highways. The nine-day tour culminated Aug. 17 with arrival in Pebble Beach, where the cars will be on display during the Concours, Sunday, Aug. 21.

"The route is designed for leisurely driving down great touring roads," says tour master Al McEwan, who has also organized West Coast tours for pre-World War II Bentleys and Rolls Royces. "Automobiles ranging from the larger brass-era cars through the sports cars of the '50s will meander through some of the most beautiful scenery in the country during our little excursion. The train of classics crossing the Golden Gate Bridge should be something to see."

Word spread quickly throughout the classic car community about the 2005 Pebble Beach Motoring Classic, and within a month, the selection of 30 current and former Pebble Beach Concours participants was nearly complete, including entrants from Australia, New Zealand, Switzerland and Poland.

Drivers depart Brescia at 8 p.m. and get to Ferrara at 2 a.m., find their hotel, sleep a few hours and leave at 6 for Rome, arriving around midnight and departing at 6 the next morning for the home stretch.

"By the time you get back to Brescia, you've done two-and-a-half days of driving with a total of seven hours of sleep," he said. "But it's a lot of fun."

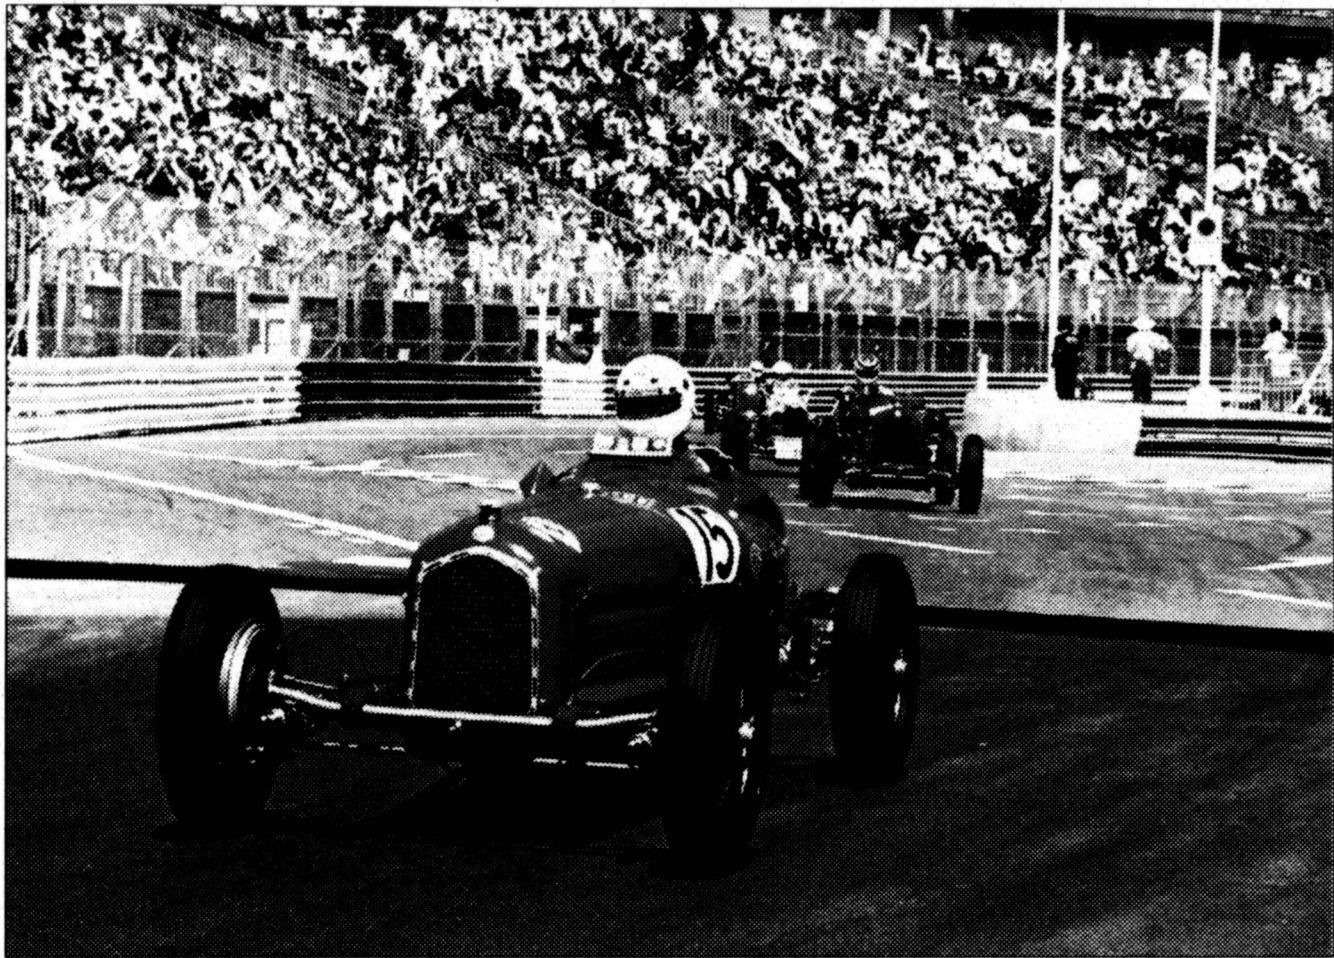

The Mille Miglia takes drivers through old hill towns and areas normally barred to automobiles, such as the central square in Siena.

"And the spectators are just wonderful," said Smith. "They go crazy over there for the cars."

But Smith said nothing compares with the Monterey Historics, during which Gillies will drive Smith's 1934 ERA single-seater, "which usually wins its class," and Smith will command his 1954 OSCA MT-4.

During the Monterey Historics at Laguna Seca, the drivers are competitive, but they are also usually very courteous and try hard not to crash, because of the rarity — and vulnerability — of the cars they race.

RACERS

"We look forward to it every year," said Smith. "It's the only event my wife will go to."

While he's driven the 2.238-mile Laguna Seca circuit many times, Smith has the advantage of having raced it just a few weeks ago during his invitational. It was the first time he'd been on the tarmac since $2 million in safety improvements were made for July's U.S. Red Bull Grand Prix world championship motorcycle races.

"The track has a different visual aspect in a couple of places," he said, such as Turn 9, where a footbridge was moved 150 yards back up the track toward the Corkscrew.

Smith speculated it runs a second to a second-and-a-half quicker per lap and hopes that translates to a good finish in his OSCA, which he will drive in the first group Saturday, Aug. 20.

"To me, Laguna Seca is one of the smoother tracks. Infineon [in Sonoma] is much more bumpy," he said.

Ned Spieker Jr.

Spieker called the Monterey Historics, in which he will drive an Alfa Romeo and a Lotus "just fabulous," and called Steve Earle "an artist" whose promotion of historic racing has been a credit to the entire Monterey Peninsula.

"It's fun for people to come to Monterey and Carmel and have the racing and the quality of the cars he attracts from all over the world. It's just magnificent."

Spieker estimated only a quarter or a third of the racers who want to drive at the historics actually get in.

One of the fortunate for just the past several years, Spieker began vintage racing after taking a Skip Barber Racing School at Laguna. But he's long been a car guy.

"I've been interested for decades — a little boy who hasn't grown up," said Spieker, who was born and raised in the San Francisco Bay Area and works in the real estate business. Spieker Properties was the original developer of Ryan Ranch, among many others, and he sold his successful company to Equity Office Properties, the largest office space company in the United States.

Before he started racing them, Spieker restored collector cars, including the 1923 Rolls Royce that won its class at the prestigious Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance 20 years ago.

"That's what led me to vintage racing," he said. "Because I got a little bored with standing around looking at cars and much prefer to drive them."

He ended up donating the Rolls to the Blackhawk Museum, which will also have an exhibit in Pebble Beach during car week.

"It deserved to be used, and I wasn't using it," he said.

He now races "more than half a dozen" vintage cars and will be driving a 1932 Alfa Romeo P3 monoposto, an open wheel grand prix race car that won the world-famous Monaco Grand Prix and many other grand prix races in the 1930s.

He doesn't even remember where he bought the car.

"A couple of years ago it kind of found me," he said. "I wanted something that was rare and fast, and this was the car."

Last year, he took the Alfa back to the hallowed streets of Monaco, one of the stops in a season of racing for which Spieker flew two race cars overseas. His mechanic and transporter accompanied him.

"That was one of the biggest thrills of my life, especially knowing that car had been at Monaco decades before," he said. "It was very challenging driving — you can't make any errors there, because there's no runoff — but it was fun and there were many, many people. The atmosphere was just electric."

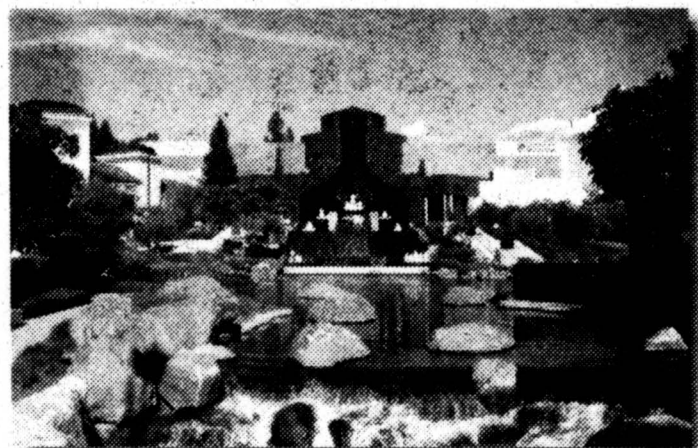

He described racing through the circuit's signature tunnel, with its contrasting light and darkness and the reverberation of vintage auto engines.

"That's the fastest part of the track and very exciting," he said. "Nowhere in the world do you go through a tunnel at your highest speed. It's really a rush."

He hopes to race the Grand Prix de Monaco Historique when it's held again next May.

He's eager to flex the Alfa's muscle at the Monterey Historics, which he called "the largest event of its kind in the world." He'll race the Alfa in the second group Saturday afternoon and his sleek 1963 Lotus 23 in the third group Sunday.

He also appreciates the work done at Laguna this summer.

"It's a better track than it ever was," he said. "It makes it more fun, because we can use the curbs, so it's a faster track."

Their charity invitational

Smith and Spieker were overjoyed with their inaugural July race to raise money for the track, which is part of a Monterey County park and run by the nonprofit Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula. As substantial financial supporters of the raceway, they decided to use their free track days "to hold an event for our friends and make it charitable while having the fun of racing our cars," Spieker said.

They modeled the event after the car-club races of 20 or 30 years ago, seeking a more casual and social atmosphere.

No spectators crowded the paddock, and fine food was served rather than the usual track fare. Racers also gathered off-track at area restaurants, such as Tarpy's Roadhouse just down the highway, to share race-related stories of fortune and failure.

Or, as Smith put it, "to sit around and tell lies."

"The main thing was just to have a good time and enjoy driving," he said. It seems that everybody did.

"We received a lot of good feedback saying, 'Don't change a thing. We really liked it. This is the way it used to be,'" Smith said. "We had a lot of e-mail thanking us for doing it and hoping we'll do it again, which we will, of course."

One hundred cars were raced July 19 and 20, and the drivers' fees raised more than $30,000 for the nonprofit 501c(3) Laguna Seca Raceway Fund, according to Spieker. Smith drove his 1958 Jaguar Special, while Spieker raced his Lotus. He'd intended to run a Brabham as well, but it broke, and he ended up with a substitute he didn't much care for.

Their financial interest also netted them seats on SCRAMP's executive committee.

"We try to bring a business perspective to some of the things that SCRAMP does," Spieker said.

The money their annual invitational raises will help make Laguna's facilities reflect the track's world-class track status, he said.

That, in turn, will draw more spectators, raising more money for the charities that benefit from the four or five major events held there each year.

Tickets for the 32nd Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races range from $35 to $95 (kids 12 and under free with a paying adult) and can be purchased by calling (800) 327-SECA or by visiting www.laguna-seca.com or www.Ticketmaster.com. Additional information on the races is available at www.monterey-historic.com.

About the cover

THE DRAMATIC beauty of the Pebble Beach shoreline — complete with ancient rocks, weathered cypress and looming, distant mountains — provides the backdrop for Bill Neale's new 33"x34" acrylic on canvas of an 1933 Alfa Romeo 8C, which honors the 20th anniversary of the Automotive Fine Arts Society show at the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance.

"This piece was inspired by the beauty of Carmel, which has influenced my work for the last 20 years," said Neale. "Many consider the Alfa 8C to be the most beautiful pre-war design and Pebble Beach to be the most memorable place for a Concours in the world."

"We're proud to have been part of the Pebble Beach Concours for the last 20 years, where we are inspired by the gorgeous landscape, fine autos, and loyal enthusiasts" said AFAS President Ken Eberts. "This year is especially significant, so each artist is preparing fresh, new pieces in honor of our milestone and enduring relationship with the Concours."

In addition to Neale, AFAS artists scheduled to exhibit their work this year will include Larry Braun, Dennis Brown, Harold Cleworth, Ken Dallison, James Dietz, Ken Eberts, Art Fitzpatrick, Tom Fritz, Tom Hale, Peter Hearsey, Dennis Hoyt, Jack Juratovic, Jay Koka, Phyllis Krim, Charles Maher, John Francis Marsh, William Motta, Niles Nakaoka, Richard Pietruska, Stanley Rose, Barry Rowe, Tony Sikorski, Craig Warwick, Bruce Wheeler and Nicola Wood.

"The Lincoln AFAS art gallery will be held at its time-honored location near the 18th hole next to the world's most exclusive automobiles, the art exhibition has become popular with celebrities, industry leaders and Concours participants over the past 20 years. The Lincoln Division of the Ford Motor Company has sponsored the Pebble Beach AFAS exhibit since 1996.

AFAS was established in 1983 by a group of artists who are acknowledged by critics to be among the best in their field. Members work in many diverse mediums including oil, watercolors, acrylics, wood, gouache, pen & ink, resin and metal.

Massachusetts move doesn't keep Woudenberg from emcee duties

By LAITH AGHA

I STILL remember very clearly sitting in Dr. Woudenberg's class at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach, listening to him recite the famous line by 17th century philosopher Thomas Hobbes: "Life is solitary, poor, nasty, brutish and short."

Above all other philosophical summations we discussed in that class, that one stuck out the most. Perhaps it was because, as a student in an exclusive school in a wealthy neighborhood, the harshness of life described by Hobbes was a bit difficult for me to fathom.

Or perhaps I was fascinated by the contrast of this ultimate statement of political cynicism being uttered by one of the most vibrant, accomplished persons I had ever met.

Dr. Paul Woudenberg moved in June after a 30-year stint as a Monterey Peninsula resident. He and his wife, Emily, relocated to Yarmouth, Mass., on Cape Cod to be closer to family, including their two daughters and a 2-year-old granddaughter.

His day job for the last 20 years was teacher of religion and ethics at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach and minister of the Church of the Forest, also on the RLS campus. But he was widely known around Pebble Beach as a community leader and expert on classic cars.

The Voice of the Concours d'Elegance, Woudenberg has been the annual car show's announcer since 1980, a role he took on after being a chief judge of European Classics at the P.B. event since 1975. He first judged in 1972, though his Concours roots began growing long before that.

With more than 200 cars having passed through his collection, he has entered several of them in the Concours, beginning in 1957 with a 1933 Rolls Royce Phantom II, one of only 12 in existence.

As impressive as it was to show up with such a rare car, he quickly realized what kind of crowd he was dealing with when someone mockingly asked, "Do you drive this every day?" Woudenberg admits that it was in rather "shabby" condition.

He went on to enter several more cars, experiencing only marginal success as a contestant.

"The best I ever placed was second in a category," Woudenberg explained, referring to a 1923 Lincoln. "And that was in a category with three cars."

While none of his cars ever stole the show, Woudenberg himself is a well revered celebrity of the event. Last year he was awarded the Lorin Tryon Trophy in recognition of his outstanding contribution to the Concours.

His credentials in the automotive world aren't limited to the Concours. He is the author of six books on classic cars and numerous articles for automotive journals, and his personal library includes about 2,200 books on automobiles, establishing him as an expert on all types of classic cars, something he must be if he is going to deliver well-informed descriptions of the more than 200 yearly entries that could win their classes, or even Best of Show, on the 18th Fairway.

Besides his role with the Concours, Woudenberg was a staple of the Pebble Beach community before leaving the area. Praised by Jack Kidder, president of the Del Monte Forest Property Owners, for his "Solomon-like wisdom and diplomatic demeanor," he served as president of the DMFPO and the Del Monte Forest Foundation and sat on the boards of the Carmel Bach Festival and the Monterey Symphony.

A U.S. Navy veteran of World War II, Woudenberg's life before he moved to the Peninsula was just as full. He earned his Ph.D. from Boston University in textual criticism (the analysis of Greek manuscripts). Two visits with Nobel Peace Prize winner Albert Schweitzer also helped turn Woudenberg into a noted scholar and lecturer on Schweitzer's life and accomplishments.

A former member of the Los Angeles County Narcotics Commission, Woudenberg was a minister at the First Methodist Church of Santa Monica before moving to the Peninsula in 1975 to take up the same position at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel.

Despite his departure for Massachusetts, the Del Monte Forest and the Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance will continue to get at least a small dose of the doctor every year. Woudenberg will return every August as the Concours announcer, a role he intends to fill for a while.

"I'll be back every year until I can't do it anymore or until they fire me."

A Pebble Beach Concours fixture says, 'I'll be back every year until I can't do it any more or until they fire me.'

CONCOURS WEEK

Top events crowd final three days of world's premier auto week

IT'S been the premier event on the summer calendar in Pebble Beach since 1950. But what started as a modest gathering hosted by a few car-loving friends has grown into the world's greatest assemblage of classic cars and their upscale fans — and of specialized events catering to their interests and tastes.

This weekend, the calendar runs the gamut from multi-million-dollar auctions to races and judged displays of the world's finest machines.

Here's a complete rundown of these fantastic happenings — and we dare you to try to attend them all!

Aug. 19-21, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday,

Spectators wander through the collection in the Blackhawk tent and out on the golf course, as well as shop for collectibles, posters and more. To continue the celebration, Concours visitors and the general public are invited to visit the Blackhawk Museum at home in Danville for its 17th Annual Post Pebble Beach Open

This stunning 1938 Horch 853A Erdmann & Rossi Sport Cabriolet, owned by Judge Joseph and Margie Cassini of West Orange, N.J., was named Best of Show of the 2004 Pebble Beach Concours d'Elegance.

Beach Dweller Classic

MONTEREY

Hugging the shore of Monterey Bay there is a separated sun and sand community called Del Monte Beach. At the top of this enclave sits a remodeled 3-bedroom, 2-bath beach dweller's classic cottage. It has hardwood floors and fireplace in the living room, and an eat-in kitchen with a gas range. The front master suite opens onto a sunny patio, and the rear bedrooms have vaulted, knotty-pine ceilings. Your beach house awaits.

A Motorsports Gathering
Quail Lodge and Resort
Friday, Aug. 19, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Entering its third year, The Quail — a gathering of a few thousand car and motorcycle enthusiasts at Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley — will pay tribute to the legendary Mexican race, La Carrera Panamericana, with a selection of 120 sports and racing cars.

Among them will be 20 that competed when the race was held from 1950 to 1954 along the Mexican portion of the newly built Panamerican Road intended to unite the Americas. Ten Alfa Romeos, the featured marque of this year's vintage car week, and an unparalleled display of vintage motorcycles are also on tap at "The Q." Once again, the Bay Area Engine Modelers will exhibit fully operational miniature engines, and guests will also be invited to test drive new Bentleys and take an off-road hillclimb in a Range Rover. The Q separates itself from other events by providing exceptional food and wine. Under the leadership of Bernardus Executive Chef Cal Stamenov, the culinary team will prepare California cuisine reflecting the Mexican roots of the Panamericana, and wines will be poured to complement the cuisine.

Tickets are $150 per person and include a collectible poster and event magazine, as well as access to the Bonhams & Butterfields auction. Children 12 and under are free. Call

An Important Sale of

and Automobilia
Quail Lodge Resort
Aug. 19

Bonhams & Butterfields' eighth annual sale of Collectors' Motor Cars and Automobilia, held alongside "The Quail — A Motorsports Gathering" at Quail Lodge and Resort Aug. 19, features a star-studded list of offerings.

U.S. President John F. Kennedy's father, Joseph Patrick Kennedy, drove the 1930 Rolls-Royce Springfield Phantom I Newport town car expected to bring $250,000. The restorer unearthed intriguing artifacts, including a ticket stub from the famous Kit Kat Club in Harlem and a loaded Derringer secured behind the seat cushions.

The 1910 Mercedes bought new by Colonel John Jacob Astor IV — who went down with the Titanic — could fetch as much as $320,000.

But the headliner is the "outstandingly rare and immensely sought-after" Alfa Romeo TZ2 Berlinetta — nicknamed the 'Baby GTO' after Ferrari's legendary model by the same name. Ten were built for road racing, and few have ever been traded regularly upon the open market. The Alfa owned and campaigned by the Belgian Count Rudy van der Straten of the Stella Artois brewing family is race-ready and a recent proven vintage-race victor.

by the legendary big-block Chevrolet V8 engine, could bring $1 million.

Among the more than 250 lots of automobilia and collectibles opening the auction will be the collection of Barney Oldfield, an early 1900s American racing pioneer.

"For decades, frustrated traffic cops are said to have often pulled over lead-foots and asked the pointed question: 'Who do you think you are, Barney Oldfield?'" according to B&B. "This cigar-smoking, bar room-brawling speed demon's place in history is secure."

The illustrated Bonhams & Butterfields catalog can be reviewed and purchased online at www.bonhams.com/us. The sale commences Aug. 19. Admission to the auction is free for Quail ticket holders. For more information or for separate admission, call (415) 861-7500 or visit www.bonhams.com.

The 32nd Annual Rolex Monterey Historic Automobile Races

Mazda Raceway at Laguna Seca

Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 19-21

The quintessential gentlemen's racing event was started by enthusiast Steve Earle more than three decades ago with just 66 cars and a handful of spectators, but the Monterey Historics now feature 400 entrants in two full days of vintage car racing (with practice on Friday) that showcase models from almost every automotive era. This year, Great American Specials — "homegrown custom race cars from all eras of motor racing" — will be featured on the track. Entries are divided into 14 classes, with seven groups competing on Saturday and seven on Sunday, to ensure no two races are alike. Well matched, the competition is always stiff, but also respectful, considering the value of the automobiles and the hard work of their owners and drivers. Spectators are always invited to wander through the paddock and check out the many displays, while vendors will be on hand to happily provide for impulse buys. For detailed event information, visit www.montereyhistorics.com. Tickets for the historics are available at the gate for one, two or three days, by calling (800) 327-SECA (7322) or at www.laguna-seca.com. Children 12 and under admitted free.

Concorso Italiano

Black Horse Golf Course, Seaside

Friday, Aug. 19, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, Concorso Italiano promises to satisfy every Italy-inspired craving. This year will mark the first under the sole leadership of new owners Jack and Leslie Wadsworth, and they have pledged to celebrate accordingly.

Featuring Alfa Romeo and the 40th anniversary of the Lamborghini Miura, Concorso will also salute special Ferrari models, including the Superamerica and the F430, as well as the Maserati GranSport.

With close to 2,000 entries, a wide array of vendors and thousands of spectators, the well-attended Concorso has presented some traffic and parking issues in the past, but the Wadsworths hired experts to solve those holdups and have said new lanes, traffic flow, parking areas and clear signs will accommodate the crowds and minimize delays. Gold tickets run $150, with general admission $100. Visit www.concorso.com; e-mail ci@concorso.com, or call (425) 742-0632 for more information.

Kruse Auction

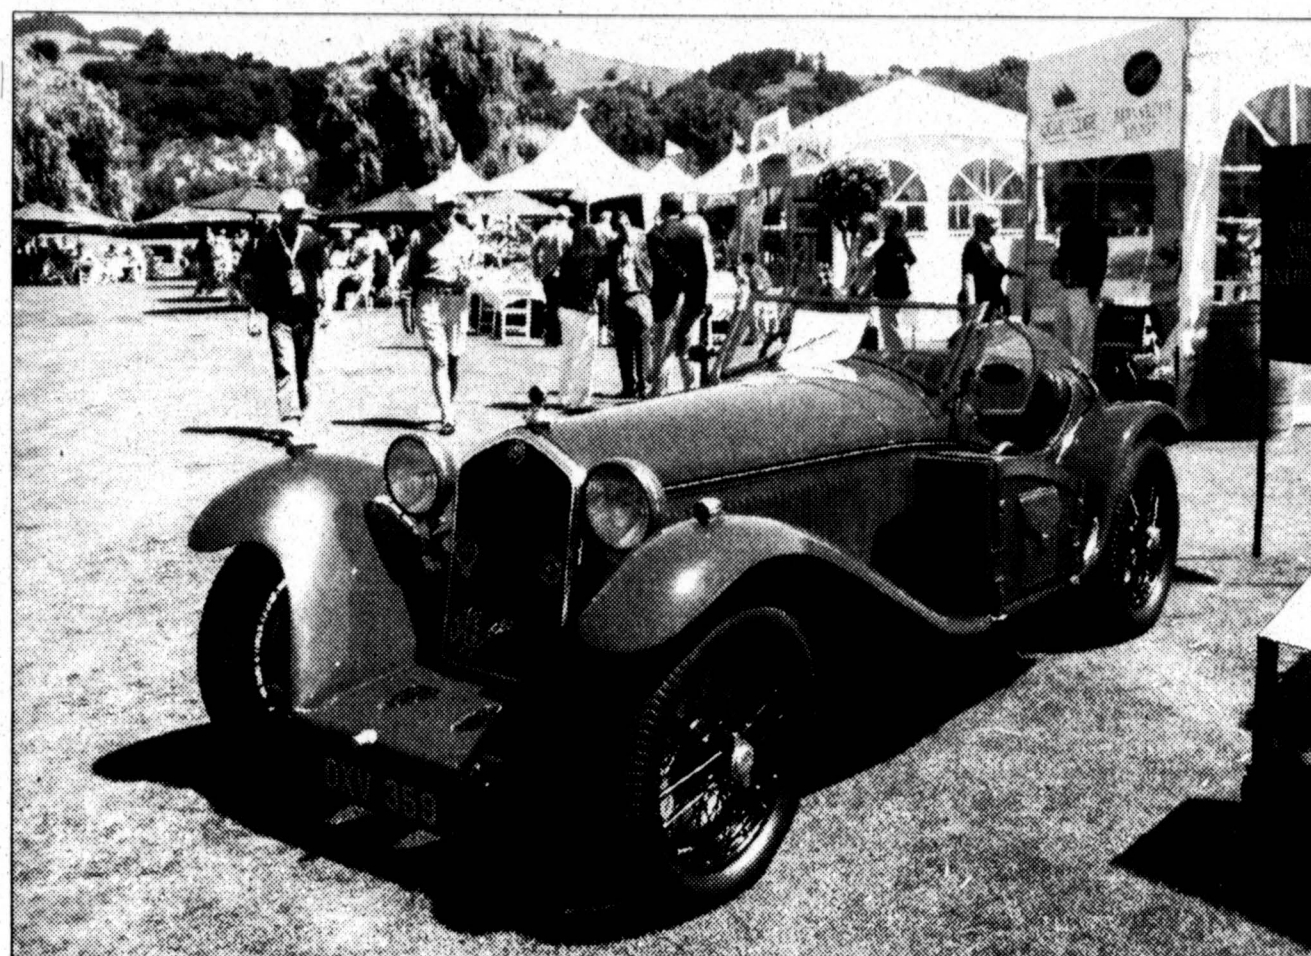

Black Horse Golf Course, Seaside

Aug. 19, 2 to 6 p.m.

Held in conjunction with Concorso Italiano at Black Horse Golf Course in Seaside, the second annual Kruse Auction will offer a wide variety of notable automobiles for sale Aug. 19.

The 1936 Packard 1407 Dietrich Victoria Two Door Roadster Special was the last model year for wooden spoke wheel, and the car features suicide doors and mechanical brakes, as well as a radiator grille that opens and closes when hot. One of 30 produced — only seven of which are known to exist —

Featuring fine food and wine to complement an unusual and intriguing array of vintage automobiles, such as this Alfa Romeo, which raced in the Mille Miglia, The Quail offers freedom from crowds by limiting admission to 3,000.

this Packard also made a film appearance in "A Woman named Jackie," about the famous Kennedy.

Other eye-catching automobiles slated for the block are a 1957 Corvette Roadster, a 2001 Panoz and a 1999 Lamborghini GTR.

Russo & Steele will offer a 1931 Ford 5-window Coupe with bright-red paint and ghost flames highlighting the front fenders. Embodying the custom efforts that drove the hot-rod culture, the Ford features a frenched cowl, hidden door hinges, remote power windows and a deck lid.

Monterey Sports Car Auction
Portola Plaza Hotel, Monterey

Fri., Sat., Aug. 19-20, 5:30 p.m. to midnight. Preview Fri., Sat., 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The 20th Annual Monterey Sports and Classic Car Auction, presented by Canada's RM Auctions, is expected to offer more than $40 million in rare automobiles and memorabilia.

A 1938 Talbot-Lago T150 C-SS Figoni et Falaschi Teardrop Coupe valued at $3 million to $4 million will headline. Named for the seductive shape of the car's body and fenders, the Talbot-Lago is a dynamic specimen of French coachbuilding. This car won the 24 Hours of Spa in 1948.

A 1960 Aston Martin DB4 GT Zagato, the second of 19 built and featuring a handcrafted special alloy body by coachbuilder Ugo Zagato, could fetch $3.2 million, as might a 1953 Ferrari 375MM Spyder raced in grand prix in Sweden and Portugal in the 1950s.

The 1964 Ford GT 40 Prototype that won the 1966 24 Hours of Daytona with Ken Miles and Lloyd Ruby at the wheel still flaunts its racing livery and is estimated to rake in $2.6 million.

The auction will be held in the Portola Plaza Hotel, Monterey, Aug. 19-20 from 5:30 to midnight, with previews Aug. 19-20 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $30 per person, with children 12 and under admitted free. Gooding & Company collectible automobile auction

Pebble Beach Equestrian Center

Aug. 21, 6 p.m.; previews, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Aug. 19-20 and 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 21

Before David Gooding established his own auction company in Santa Monica in 2003, his sales success hit milestones when he worked for those who are now his auction house's competitors.

While with Christie's International Motor Cars Ltd., and later with RM Auctions, he achieved record-setting prices, including the sale of a 1938 Alfa Romeo 8C 2900 B for $4.07 million for Christie's and a 1962 LeMans-winning Ferrari 330 TRI LM for $6.49 million for RM. (For the sake of comparison, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea's municipal budget this year is just under $11 million.)

Among this year's offerings of rare automobiles will be the 1967 Ferrari 275 GTS/4 NART Spyder, conceived by LeMans winner and American importer Luigi Chinetti as "the ultimate convertible Ferrari." It was the first of 10 built and after a brief racing career was driven by Steve McQueen in "The Thomas Crown Affair." It so captivated the actor that he ordered one for himself.

A one-of-a-kind, custom-designed 1952 Cadillac Two-Seat Roadster created for Harold Boyer, General Motors' chief engineer, will also be offered. Since it was built, the Cadillac has remained in the Boyer family, cherished and maintained. Features include a "disappearing roof," aircraft-style instrument panel with extra dials and a pop-up taillight that hides the fuel filler.
